OPA Launches Roll-Back of Food Prices

DOLLAR-CENTS SCHEDULES UP IN 130 CITIES

Five Per Cent Over-All Cut In Eating Budgets Seen Under Enforcement.

NEW 'TOP' LISTS DUE

General 10 Per Cent Drop on Seven Major Items Ordered June 1.

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON—The Office of Price Administration's statement that "effective" enforcement of retail food regulations would reduce consumers' food budgets some five per cent coincided today with the opening of OPA's campaign to roll back prices to last September's levels.

As a prelude to the scheduled June 1 roll-back—10 per cent reductions in seven major food items—community dollars-and-cents prices went into effect today in small retail stores in more than 130 cities. The roll-back will be accomplished June 1 with the aid of government subsidies at the processors levels.

But from two sources—and for two different reasons—came loud dissents. One organized labor spokesman described OPA's roll-back program as "peanuts." Chairman of the house committee which holds the government's purse-strings cried "unsound and un-American" to the subsidy proposal.

OPA admitted for the first time that effective price control never has existed in a report on a recent survey of prices in 230 coal mining communities. The survey revealed that the opinion of 200 OPA investigators was unanimous that food price costs in mining communities was approximately the same as those in comparable communities, but that "substantial" price violations were found.

The report by Thomas I. Emerson, OPA's associate general counsel, listed a five-point enforcement program on which it based its estimate of a possible five per cent reduction in prices.

As OPA's latest campaign to

Red Cross Appeals For 100 To Report As Blood Donors

A plea went out today from Mansfield Red Cross officials for 100 more blood donors to report to the mobile donor unit which will be at John Simpson junior high from 10:45 to 2:45 p. m. Saturday.

Donor chairmen struck a snag in the scheduling of appointments today when more than 250 cards which had been mailed out had not yet been returned. Anyone interested in donating blood is urged by Mrs. William Layton, in charge of registration, to call the Red Cross office for an appointment.

The unit will be in Mansfield three days when it comes this week. Thursday will be spent at the Mansfield Reformatory where inmates will have a chance to make blood donations. Friday the unit will be at the First Presbyterian church from 1:45 to 5:45 p. m.

New Jap Air Bases Bared Through Raid

Daily Thunderheads Slow Allied Plane Activity Over New Guinea.

(By International News Service)

UNITED NATIONS HEADQQUARTERS IN AUSTRALIA—Official disclosure that the Japanese have constructed more than one airfield in the Wewak sector of northern New Guinea was contained in an Allied communique today announcing a new Allied bombing assault on the big enemy base

The communique said: "Our heavy bombers at night raided enemy airdromes" at Wewak.

Airmen revealed that there are at least three major Nipponese airdromes in the immediate vicinity of Wewak alone. It is also known that there are a string of small enemy landing fields stretching along the entire northern coast of New Guinea from Lae to Sollandia.

While Allied aerial activity over northern New Guinea has been hampered by impassable thunderheads towering 10,000 feet above the Owen Stanley ranges, the Japs have been following their usual practice of taking advantage of bad weather to speed sea-borne reinforcements into New Guinea bays all the way from Madang to the far northwestern tip of New Guinea.

The blows at Jap bases that American and Australia airmen have been able to complete successfully have been accomplished only before noon, due to the steady piling up of fresh thunderhead clouds during the afternoon and night.

Although widespread sorties were carried out against enemy bases in New Britain and New Guinea yesterday, almost all raids were by long-range reconnaissance planes. These ships are fighting the war through some of the worst weather yet reported over the Antipodes battlefront, to keep the high command constantly informed of equally wide Nipponese movements.

The most striking feature of the Japs' latest activities is their failure to bring important merchant marine units into New Guinea waters. Saturday's attack against Madang, which netted Allied airmen the destruction of a small, troop-filled transport and another small cargo vessel, serves to emphasize again the enemy's determination to supply

M'Nutt Prepares Exemptions on 48-Hour Week For Steel.

WASHINGTON — (U.P.) — War Manpower Chief Paul V. McNutt said today that regulations are being formulated to provide exemptions from the recent order for a 48-hour week throughout the steel industry.

Previously, it had been learned that plans were being made to issue regulations which would weaken the steel order, which becomes effective July 1, by allowing liberal exemptions.

This move began after the steel interests had failed to block issuance of the order May 1, and certain WMC officials reportedly hope to appease the industry in this manner. The war production board's steel industry advisory committee inferentially opposed the compulsory 48-hour week.

As Quints Visited U. S. To Launch Ships

The Dionne quintuplets forgot the names of the five new U. S. cargo vessels they came to Superior, Wis., to christen yesterday; but their batting average was 1.000. Not one of them missed as the five little girls swung their bottles of international boundary water at the prows of the ships. Top left photo, the quints are checked one at a time, on arrival in the U. S., by an immigration officer at Sault Ste. Marie, Mich. Quints Forget Ships' Names But All Of Them Hit Prows

(By United Press)

SUPERIOR, Wis.—Five sturdy cargo vessels, built to haul war supplies for use against the Axis, rode at anchor today with the blessing of three nations and five little girls in red who forgot their lines but swung their ribbon-bedecked christening bottles with determination.

When the Dionne quintuplets shattered their five bottles of international boundary water yesterday against the five 250-foot freighters, they not only upset the laws of the average with a 1,000 batting average, they shattered tradition and made history.

A crowd estimated at 50,000 watched the launching in the Bay of St. Louis, which flows into Lake Superior.

The freighters were named for early American sea captains—Moses Gay, Asa Eldridge, Gurdon Gates, Bailey Foster and Watson Ferris. The names were too difficult for the quints, who speak English with piquant French accents, and at the last minute they skipped the "I christen thee" part of the ceremony.

After the launching, the Dionnes were escorted to their Canadian railways sleeper car which was their home during their stay here, and the train began the trip home.

The five ships, built by Walter Butler shipyards, will be used by the British under lend-lease.

Women Given Bond Quota Of $150,000 But Raise $600,525

During last month's second War Loan drive Mansfield women proved themselves modern Molly Pitchers standing solidly behind their fighting sons and husbands on the battlefronts of the world.

A survey of bond sales figures today showed that women's organizations were responsible for more than a half million dollars of the $8,272,066 subscribed. The bond drive went over the top by $1,623,066.

The original goal set for the women was $150,000. Housewives made it look foolish when they turned in total sales amounting to $600,525.55. Under the leadership of Mrs. Louis J. Ott, chairman, 42 of the 52 participating women's clubs went far beyond their quotas.

Heading the list of "all-out efforts" was that of the Charity club whose goal was $3,100 and which turned in $104,312.50. Others of the ten highest in bond sales are

SKULL INJURY SUFFERED IN TUMBLE FATAL

Accidents Within 27-Hour Period at Hotel, Home Take Lives of Two.

Two Westinghouse employes, Claude Trail, about 50, Adelphia hotel, and Luther D. Wolford, 39, of 298 West Sixth street, were dead today after suffering skull fractures in similar accidents within a 27-hour period over the week-end.

Both men were injured in falls, apparently after suffering attacks of dizziness. Both died in General hospital.

Wolford was injured at 7:30 p. m. Saturday when he fell 15 feet from the bathroom window in his home to the lawn. He died about four hours later.

Trail, who had a certificate in his pocket indicating he was eligible for a 20-year service pin at the Westinghouse plant, fell at the entrance to the Adelphia hotel at 8:30 p. m. Sunday, striking his head on the curb, police said. A taxi driver saw him and called police. The injured man died at 1:15 a. m. today.

A physician who examined Trail said he apparently suffered a heart attack or became dizzy, causing him to fall. Death was attributed to the head injury.

Westinghouse officials were attempting today to locate members of Trail's family. It was understood his mother, Mrs. Amanda Trail, lives at Flintstone, Md. Trail had resided at the hotel for eight years, according to J. H. Imhoff, proprietor. Trail's body was taken to the Geiger Funeral home pending word from the family.

Wolford, a screw machine operator at the Westinghouse plant, had been unable to work for the past two weeks because of illness. Members of his family said he had been suffering from a back ailment and was subject to attacks of dizziness.

A resident of Mansfield for the past 19 years, he was a native of North Lewisburg, O., where he was born June 25, 1902.

Funeral services for Wolford will be conducted Tuesday at 4 p. m. at the Wappner Funeral home with Rev. Grover E. Swoyer, pastor of the First Lutheran church, officiating. Burial will be in the Mansfield cemetery.

Surviving are the widow, Mrs. Gertrude Wolford; two daughters, Vivian and Wanda, and a son, Donald, all of the home; his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Levi Wolford of North Lewisburg; two brothers, Ralph and Howard Wolford of Columbus, and two sisters, Mrs. Helen Costin of Mansfield and Mrs. Irene Stratton of North Lewisburg.

FIRE KILLS 2

Second Blaze In Two Days Sweeps Canton Hotel.

CANTON (A.P.) This city's second major fire in two days killed two persons, injured six others and caused damage estimated at more than $100,000.

The blaze swept through the Flory hotel on the second floor of a two-story building early yesterday.

The dead were identified as Charles R. Rickey, 46, an employe of the Timken Roller Bearing Co., and Ames A. Cummings, about 55, a plumber.

Jack Sylvus, hotel manager, suffered extensive first-degree burns on the back and neck as he directed guests to safety. Origin of the fire was undetermined.

Flames swept through the Thurin Furniture and Rug Co., warehouse Saturday, causing loss which the owner estimated at $400,000.

Allies Seal Up Cap Bon With Ships, Planes

Sink Many Small Craft Attempting To Flee Tunisia Inferno As Enemy Near Bizerte Gives Up Unconditionally.

(By Associated Press)

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA—Naval and air forces threw a blockade around Cap Bon peninsula and sank many small ships carrying Axis soldiers desperately attempting to escape the Tunisian inferno today.

The American Second corps obtained unconditional surrender of all enemy units in its territory southeast of Bizerte.

German resistance stiffened in front of British armor smashing against the entrance to Cap Bon peninsula.

The position of Axis troops still fighting in Tunisia was described officially as "worse than desperate" and it is certain that no important number of German and Italian soldiers will escape from Africa.

Details of the German surrender to the Americans in the north were disclosed at headquarters as follows:

At 11 a. m. yesterday Major General Krause, commanding artillery of the Africa corps, sent an emissary to Gen. Omar N. Bradley and requested an armistice so the surrender might be negotiated.

General Bradley's terms were as follows:

1—Unconditional surrender.

2—Prompt acceptance.

The American officer further demanded that all destruction of German equipment cease immediately. Krause accepted.

The wholesale surrender of the enemy battalions then began and by early afternoon all the northern region where the enemy had been cut off by the wedge the British First army drove through to Tunis was cleaned up.

The bulk of the German armor was there and the total of prisoners was over 25,000, in addition to another 25,000 taken by the British.

Five other generals were among those who surrendered with Krause.

Meanwhile British armor striking south and southeastward from the Hamman Lif area on the Gulf of Tunis southeast of the capital found the German stiffening there, temporarily at least, and there was some fierce fighting which was confused today.

Armored columns pushed ahead, however, and forward patrols reached a point 12 miles south of Creteville — which placed them near the center of the peninsula's base — and developed in other areas.

Some enemy troops on the peninsula were attempting to get away, sometimes in what amounted to panic, and Allied air forces were attacking them both on land and sea. They sank many small boats laden with soldiers, who clung desperately to rafts after the vessels submerged and tried to ward off attacks by waving white flags.

The bulletin said that "the enemy troops that remain are concentrated" on the Cap Bon peninsula.

(This suggested the Germans and Italians on the southern front had left its defense to rear guards in a rush northeastward to the doubtful haven of the peninsula and a union with survivors of the Tunis-Bizerte campaign.)

"In northeast Tunisia all organized fighting ended on the sec-

Franco Puts Out New Peace Feeler

MADRID — (A.P.) — Generalissimo Francisco Franco, speaking at Almeria last night, said the World war had reached a deadlock in which neither side had the power to destroy the other.

Franco said additional victories would cost great sacrifices, but sooner or later the deadlock would force the belligerents to listen to voices calling for peace like those of Spain and the Vatican.

(The peace feeler speech by the Spanish leader, indebted to the Axis for help in overthrowing the Spanish republic, was considered significant in view of the massive Axis defeat in Africa and the successes of the Russian winter offensive.)

NERVOUS: Nazis Put Clamp On Holland As Allies Eye Sicily

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON—The Axis has been "struck by the invasion jitters," the war department said today, intimating that the promise of a European second front is about to be made good.

"The Nazis," the department continued in a review of strategy, "are said to have declared martial law in Holland, violated three years ago but still unconquered. We are one step forward on the long march to victory.

Coupling of the idea of "invasion jitters" with a reference to martial law in Holland may be a not too subtle war department effort to direct attention away from the intended point of attack.

Smashing Allied air blows at Axis islands lying nearest to Tunisia indicated that the next major step toward Europe will be into Sicily. But the second front may come anywhere, with some heavy betting here on either Italy or Greece.

Seizure of Sicily, 90 miles from the nearest Tunisian coastal point, and of two much smaller and even nearer islands, looks like the next second front development. Their seizure merely would be a move toward a European bridgehead. The two smaller islands are Pantelleria and Lampedusa, both Italian, lying 35 and 80 miles, re-

CRUSHED: Nazis Beaten Down Trying To Crack Siege Lines

(By International News Service)

MOSCOW—Frantic German efforts to break the Soviet siege arc before the vital Nazi naval base of Novorossisk were crushed today as the Russians hurled back repeated enemy counter-attacks northeast of the Black sea port.

Serious losses were inflicted on the Nazis as they tried desperately to maintain control of their last remaining bridgehead in the western Caucasus.

The Soviet noon communique announced that two companies of German infantry were wiped out within the past 12 hours. In addition, six enemy artillery and mortar batteries, 21 machine gun nests and eight blockhouses were smashed.

In the far north, near the Axis army headquarters at Lake Ilmen, fighting flared anew on this long-dormant front as the Soviet repelled three successive German attacks. On the middle Donets front north of Chugyev, meanwhile, another Nazi attempt to cross "a water barrier"—presumably the Donets river was beaten back by Russian defenders on the east bank, the communique said.

An earlier Soviet announcement revealed that the Red army air force out-fought the Axis nearly ond U. S. corps front at 11 a. m. yesterday, the terms of surrender being unconditional," the communique said. "It is estimated that about 25,000 prisoners have been captured in this sector alone, including six generals, but the counting has not been completed.

FOE SURRENDERS TO AMERICANS NEAR BIZERTE

Allies Blockade Cap Bon With Ships, Planes as Nazis Try To Flee.

"Large quantities of enemy equipment and war material have also been captured. Mopping up operations continue."

British armored forces ran into heavy and bitter resistance in a push southeast of Tunis to block off the entrance of the Cap Bon peninsula, but by last evening had made some progress and their advance—which previously had taken Creteville and Hamman Lif, the former 14 miles from Tunis—was reported continuing.

(Both the German and the Italian high commands told of the surrender of the German and Italian troops pocketed below Bizerte, but said they fought until their ammunition was spent in a gain battle against fresh and highly superior tank formations which operated with strong air support.)

The French 19th corps of Gen. Marie Louis Koeltz was reported to have made a local advance against strong enemy opposition in the sector of Zaghouan, 28 miles south of Tunis, in rolling up the right wing of the Axis southern lines.

Despite the fact it was weakened to reinforce the British First army drive upon Tunis through the center, the Eighth army also gained in a local attack on the southern front and took some prisoners. The communique said "all its objectives" were achieved.

The roll of prisoners was growing steadily. A special communique announced last night 50,000 had been taken "since May 7," a designation which indicated the toll of the offensive, begun May 5, was even higher.

(An Algiers radio broadcast in London said 64,000 prisoners had been taken, 42,000 troops killed or wounded and 330 tanks, 500 guns and 4,000 trucks destroyed or captured.)

Naval and coastal forces were reported operating on both sides of the Cap Bon peninsula, the tip of which lies 90 miles from Sicily and the communique, without attempting to cover all the operations, said "there have been incidents in plenty."

Advices from the front indicated the Axis leaders were trying desperately to withdraw the remnants of their shattered armies on Cap Bon peninsula for a final stand under a ruthless pounding from the air and on the land.

Emphasizing the hopelessness of any attempt at evacuation, the United States army air forces swept across the Sicilian straits yesterday to strike a mighty blow at Palermo, Sicily, with a force of 400 planes—the greatest single raid ever carried out in the Mediterranean theater.

An Allied light naval force, meanwhile, stood off the east coast of Cap Bon to pour a hail of shells on the German and Italian troops crowding into the 10 square mile area jutting into the Mediterranean north and east of Tunis.

Allied planes, apparently unopposed, pounded at the retreating army as powerful British armored columns drove southeast of Tunis in an attempt to cut his forces in two and close the bottleneck entrance of the peninsula.

The 50,000 Axis fighters which the Allied communique said had been captured since the clean-up in the Tunis-Bizerte sector started represented a quarter to a third of the reported German-Italian strength.

German resistance to the snapping of the trap on the mouth of the Cap Bon district apparently centered at Hamman Lif, 10 miles southeast of Tunis, where an Allied communique yesterday reported "heavy fighting continues."

The British radio, without official confirmation, said their armored forces had captured Hammamet, the southern coastal hinge 20 miles below Hamman Lif, and had "sealed off all the Axis forces in the peninsula.")

Bewildered Axis troops were reported to be astounded at the speed of the Allied advance and the collapse of their own positions. Recent dispatches said one group of 5,000 Axis troops had thrown down their hands after they failed to break through surrounding Allied forces to make their way to safety temporary refuge on Cap Bon.

The official announcement of the American raid on Palermo said the weight of bombs unloaded on the big Sicilian base was five times greater than the amount dropped in any previous raid in the Mediterranean theater.

Flying Fortresses, Mitchells and Marauders escorted by lightning fighters participated in the assault, which returning pilots said had wiped out an area about one mile square around the harbor. The destruction was described as stupendous, and fires started by the bombers were reported visible 50 miles away.

American Bombers Hit Messina Harbor

CAIRO — (INS) — American Liberty bombers yesterday smashed at the Sicilian harbor of Messina in the wake of the crippling 400-bomber raid on Palermo, Middle East headquarters announced today.

Direct hits were scored on slips where two ferries were berthed; on a locomotive roundhouse, railway yards and other targets in the harbor area, a communique said.

Other Africa-based warplanes attacked seven Axis ships in Mediterranean waters. A small enemy merchantman in the Aegean sea, near Greece, was set afire, while two others were probably sunk. Three of the ships attacked were pounced on while berthed in an island harbor, the communique said.

From all operations, no Allied planes are missing.

'Go Through Hell' Under Allied Bombs

WASHINGTON —(AP)— Large numbers of American and British prisoners of war went through "three days and nights of hell" aboard an Italian ship subjected to Allied aerial attack off the Tunisian coast, but the casualties miraculously were not "enormous."

The war department, releasing a report from North Africa attesting to the "great destructiveness and deadly accuracy" of Allied bombing, quoted a British lieutenant's story of the attack on the prison ship which had left Tunis harbor for Italy with a destroyer escort.

The destroyer, however, was sunk by Kitty bombers, and the crew refused to make the run to Sicily.

Information in London was that the freed prisoners totalled about 700 but there was no indication of the percentage of Americans.

Hitler Admits Heavy Suffering

LONDON —(AP)— Adolf Hitler was quoted by the Berlin radio today as declaring the winter "involved the heaviest suffering and hardest burdens for our soldiers." The broadcast was recorded by Reuters.

The Berlin radio said Hitler broadcast on the occasion of the anniversary of the end of another "winter help" campaign.

By halting the Russian assault and by counter-attacking, Hitler said the German soldiers had averted a crisis "which would have broken any other army in the world.

"All sacrifices on the home front pale before the privations and sufferings which our soldiers have had to bear for the second time in the east. Only love of their country and a desire that it shall be spared the horrors of war could have made such deeds possible."

"The home front has also learned courage," Hitler declared. "War has been brought to the towns, townships and villages."

The same organizations today were turning their efforts to reaching the $378,000 quota of E bonds set for the county for this month.

GERMAN ARMY RULES HOLLAND

Military Law Established as Nazis Get Invasion Jitters; Allies Eye Sicily.

spectively, from the Tunisian coast. Sicily is 90 miles from Cap Bon, at the extremity of the Tunisian peninsula into which the survivors of Axis power in Africa are today herded for slaughter or surrender.

That stretch of water between Tunisia and Sicily is the Sicilian strait. It evidently is the Allied intention to control it by taking Sicily and making the 90-mile narrows a safe thoroughfare for a shortened supply line to the Middle East. Heretofore, supplies to the Middle East have had to go all the way around Africa. Shortening the line by opening the Mediterranean will, in effect, almost miraculously increase Allied merchant marine tonnage and naval escort vessels available for convoy service.

Belief that a ground troop operation against Sicily was coming up was supported, somewhat, by an unexplained shift in the United States field command in Tunisia. Lieut. Gen. George S. Patton commanded the American second corps from the period after its defeat at Kasserine Pass until April 16. Patton's name suddenly dropped out of the communiques.

Only this week-end it was announced that Maj. Gen. Omar M. Bradley was the new second corps commander. Washington has been asking Patton's whereabouts. The war department will not tell.

But it seems reasonable that Patton, a tank expert, would be picked to command seaborne troops bound for an invasion of Sicily. If so, we will be hearing shortly of Patton.

Reign of Terror Loosed In Greece

LONDON—(INS)—Martial law was proclaimed in Holland and a new reign of terror was unloosed in Greece today as the Axis prepared to face Allied landings on Europe's northern and southern shores.

Adolf Hitler ordered drastic measures for the defense of his European fortress on the third anniversary of his invasion of western European countries, knowing full well that an avenging Allied offensive was being planned to force his unconditional surrender.

The German radio admitted that invading Allied forces might gain "some footholds" in southeastern Europe, but added that any Allied landing in the Balkans eventually would be repulsed.

As Nazi occupation authorities clamped martial law on the Netherlands, Dutch underground newspapers circulated a message to all Hollanders declaring that "the hour of total resistance has sounded; we must disorganize all railroads and traffic; we must burn all files."

In Greece, meanwhile, German authorities, fearing an imminent invasion, cut all non-military communications between Greece and the outside world. Greek prisoners were reported to be overflowing with suspected anti-Axis patriots and Germans in Athens were said to be openly declaring they would "abandon Greece in ruins" if the Allies succeeded in landing on the nation's shores.

Garment Union Studies Owning Post-War Plant

ST. LOUIS — (U.P.) — Officers of the southwest region of the AFL international ladies garwent workers' union have under consideration a plan to own and operate their own dress factory after the war.

Union officials, meeting here recently, agreed to pattern the cooperative along general lines followed in Sweden. Representatives of existing cooperatives in the U. S. have been invited to discuss their systems with the union.

Previously the union had considered giving aid to bankrupt plants, or taking them over entirely. The new program, said one official, involves "starting from scratch."

About $50,000 is called for in the initial investment, the official said. The plan would allow union members to become stockholders at approximately $5 per share. However, the ultimate goal is to confine ownership of the plant to those actually employed therein.

their advanced bases by coastal vessels alone.

Wewak, which unquestionably presents as difficult a bombardment target today as Rabaul, still accommodates large merchantmen. But in all other areas closer to the Allies advanced air bases the Japs—apparently with the Bismarck sea battle still ringing in their ears—are relying on 100-ton to 1,000-ton vessels to bring in reinforcements and supplies.

Significant too from the viewpoint of Gen. MacArthur's headquarters is the fact that, despite Jap construction work at Kavieng, New Ireland, which has converted it into a stronghold potentially equivalent to Rabaul, the Japanese high command as yet has not withdrawn any noticeable proportion of its fleet or merchant marine units from Rabaul.

In other words, where six months ago only Rabaul loomed as a real stumbling block to any Allied offensive plans, today there are two more bases equal to—if not surpassing—Rabaul in defensive or even offensive power, Kavieng and Wewak.

Tokyo Says U. S. Sub Shells Jap Village

(By Associated Press)

The Tokyo radio reported today the war had been carried directly to the islands of Japan with the shelling of a village on the island of Hokkaido by a submarine.

The Japanese broadcast said the shells from the submarine, presumably American, missed their mark and landed in a field just before midnight yesterday.

In Burma Japanese jungle troops scored new successes.

A broadcast, giving the text of an imperial headquarters communique, said Japanese army units had entered Buthedaung, 50 miles north of Akyab in Burma and 115 miles southeast of Chittagong, chief Allied base in the Indian border area.

New Delhi dispatches, admitting the withdrawal from Buthedaung, said Maungdaw, on the Bay of Bengal and the western end of the British defense line in Burma, also was in a precarious position and the British battleline might ultimately be established on the India side of the border. The British had been forced back about 40 miles in five weeks.

The high wind was accompanied by a cloudburst, centering on an area of four square miles. No casualties were reported; damage amounted to an estimated $75,000.

Many families were temporarily homeless. Seven buildings collapsed, four of which were homes, and many others were damaged, including two warehouses.

Seventy-Five Nazi fighters were destroyed Saturday in crippling Russian raids on Nazi rail communications at Bryansk, Poltava, Belgorod and other Axis-occupied cities in Russia, the Moscow radio announced. Twenty-one of the Soviet bombers, which presumably included newly-arrived American-built flying fortresses, were lost in the large-scale attacks, which left "many fires and explosions" among enemy installations.

The noon communique reported that fresh German attacks on the middle Donets front near Lisichansk were hurled back during the night. Much booty and several prisoners were taken by the Soviets in repelling the latest attacks, which followed a German attempt to recapture an unnamed locality yesterday.

"Pitfalls of Love"

(A Sequel to Marriage Meddlers)

By ADELE GARRISON

Something in my father's voice told me that he was enjoying "playing God": that he not only surmised what I was going to ask him, but was prepared to grant the request, and armed with that conviction, I spoke quickly.

"What I want," I said, "is that Ronald stay at the Underwood apartment, leaving Dicky free to mount guard so mine never will be left alone, and that I take Katharine's place in pretending to take care of Mary, and—"

"And you wish me then to permit Katharine to join Jack at the hideway for several days — a long-delayed second honeymoon, as it were?"

His voice was kind, but I could not tell what his decision might be.

"Yes, that is what I wish," I said tremulously, "and oh, father, if you could guess the regrets and remorse of both of them."

Madge Understands.

"I do not have to guess," he replied, his voice suddenly stern. "I know what Jack is undergoing, and Katharine also although I do not see what cause she has for remorse."

If Katharine had any qualms of conscience, I felt sure they were not for neglect of Jack but because her love for him might have been temporarily overshadowed by the attraction for her of Hal Meredith, but to what extent was a secret locked in Katharine's breast. Yet I was sure that now her heart belonged wholly to her husband.

"But Jack must be going through hell," my father went on, "all the worse because it is of his own making."

I knew he was thinking of his own long agony of remorse when for years he had searched for me, his only child, of whom he could find no trace, so effectually had my mother hidden herself and me, after he had gone away with the woman my mother had counted her best friend.

He was being called "the Quester of Broadway," when, in the early days of my marriage, he got a glimpse of me in a restaurant, and my resemblance to my mother brought him as much happiness as his remorse and longing for her could permit.

Did he now think Jack had the same reason for remorse, or suspect that Ruth Hayes had lured Jack away temporarily from Katharine? But that I dared not ask, and I was conscious that his eyes were fixed keenly on me.

"Tell me one thing," he said "You have seen and talked to both of them and noted their emotional reactions. Is it your well-considered opinion that it is wise to bring these two together again?"

Gives Permission.

"Indeed," I said quickly, "I think it not only wise but humane. It would be cruelty to keep them longer apart."

"Very well," he said, after a second. "You may tell Katharine that I agree to her going down to the hideaway for awhile. I will make arrangements with Richard and Ronald, so that no routine anywhere will be interrupted. But, I repeat, she must not go until this affair of Ruth Hayes is completed."

"Both she and I understand that," I told him, and rose to go back to Katharine, but he detained me as a knock sounded on the outer door, and said:

"Wait until I see who this is."

Should She Correspond With Soldier?

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

If it weren't for this terrible war, I might be happily married to the nicest man I know. We met ten years ago while still in high school, but didn't really go together until after graduation. He told me he loved me from the first time he saw me, but I fell in love gradually.

We had planned to marry, but after Pearl Harbor he hesitated and said he didn't think it would be fair to me, although I was willing. He has been deferred on account of supporting his mother, but expects to leave very shortly for the Army.

He now tells me to go out with others, that he wants me to have a fair chance, but I don't want to do that. I've had all the chances I want. Do you think there may be a doubt in his mind as to whether he really loves me? Is it competition he wants, or do you think he cares for someone else?

Wondering.

When a man tells a girl to go out with others, he wants it understood that no definite arrangement as to marriage exists. The fact that he was given deferment because he had to support his mother was probably the reason he did not want you to feel bound to him in any way. Sometimes circumstances change decisions, even as men change their minds.

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am a service man's wife, no children, and as I'm living alone in a big house, would like to get another service man's wife to share my home with me. Where could I get in touch with a trustworthy person who would appreciate this opportunity? I live in a town near all the war factories, and am soon going to get a defense job myself.

(MRS.) H. K.

Have you tried advertising through the classified columns of the newspaper? If you state clearly your proposal and explain your requirements, the offer should attract the interest of more than one service man's wife. If you are a church member, your pastor may be of help in enabling you to locate another woman who would like to share lots with you.

Sigma Kappa Gamma Has Tea Honoring Mothers

THE Colonial room on Park avenue west was the scene, Sunday afternoon, of a tea honoring mothers of members of Sigma Kappa Gamma sorority.

Miss Doris Kiraly, toastmistress, gave a toast to the Mothers. Response to daughters was made by Mrs. A. C. Minard.

Refreshments were served from a long table attractively decorated in a pink and white color scheme. The centerpiece was comprised of pink and white carnations, and tall matching tapers.

Individual programs with a picture of the mother and daughter on them, were presented to mothers, with a carnation, the sorority flower. Miss Dorothy Blackstone, the sorority president, poured.

Out-of-town guests present for the tea were the Misses Florence Blanz of Ft. Wayne, Ind., Eva Schultz and Jeanne Scott of Dayton, Mrs. Richard Hildreth of Akron, Mrs. Ralph Hazlett and Miss Eileen Minard of Cleveland, and Mrs. Hobart James of Akron.

The committee in charge of the event was Mrs. Richard James, chairman, Miss Martha Phillipon and Miss Helen Desterhaft.

COMMISSIONED

Galion Soldier Home on Leave Wins Lieutenant's Rank.

GALION — Having been commissioned as a second lieutenant last week at officers candidate school, Duke university, Durham, N. S., Lieut. HOROSCOPE

For Tuesday, May 11.

The sidereal operations for this day are very encouraging for all fresh and progressive enterprises that may deviate from the routine or humdrum. These may demand change of plans as well as environs. Hard work, sound judgment, considered moves, together with precaution and reserve in untried fields and proper deliberations as to new contracts or agreements should combine to bring gratifying success.

Those whose birthday it is may plan on sound and constructive work during the year, although the effort and initiative may be directed to new or out of the routine fields of operation. Fresh ideas or methods, backed up by practical plans, industry, good judgments and proper consideration of contracts or agreements should bring enduring success and rewards. Elders may be sought for wise counsel.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

By Shepard Barclay

"The Authority on Authorities"

NEW LAWS ARE CLEARER

Much greater clarity and definiteness have been provided in the new Laws of Contract Bridge on the question of condoning an "improper call" of any kind during the auction. Such a call is deemed to be condoned under any of the following circumstances.

1. If the opponent to the left of the offender announces he is condoning it, before he makes a call himself.

2. If the opponent to the left calls, either deliberately or inadvertently, before all questions in regard to rectification and penalty enforcement, normally settled before he calls, have been determined.

3. If the opponent at the right of the offender, who had no legal right to do so, should condone the irregularity, should endeavor to enforce or select a penalty, or offers advice regarding it. Right-hand opponent's legal rights after an irregularity are limited to his drawing attention to the offense, giving or obtaining the law covering it and asking his partner whether or not he knows his rights.

There is a much better balance, than in the old Laws, in the provisions penalizing a pass out of turn. When the out-of-turn pass (not condoned) is made before the opening bid, it is canceled and the offender must pass when next it is his turn to call. After the opening bid, a pass (not condoned) made when it is the turn of the opponent at the passer's right is penalized the same as a pass before the opening bid, a pass (not condoned) when it is the turn of the passer's partner is canceled, and both members of the offending side must pass thereafter whenever it is their turn.

An opening bid out of turn (not condoned), when it is the turn of the opponent at the bidder's right, is canceled, and the offender's partner must pass on his next turn; when it is the turn of the offender's partner, or of the opponent at the left of the offender, it is canceled, and the offender's partner must pass whenever it is his turn to call.

It seems to me that cooking for a family is one of the most satisfactory jobs there is No need to mourn that you cannot take a defense job if you have a family of small children. America has been the only e that the greater majority of Nisei have known. After the America still will be their e.

'he war department is giving Nisei a chance to defend that e and all it stands for."

nxious to prove their loyalty, Nisei leaders are strongly conscious of criticism that they are being coddled.

Each evacuee on arrival received a cot, a straw mattress and two blankets. Families were quartered in single rooms, mostly 18 by 25 feet in size and equipped with a coal heating stove. Japanese carpenter crews finished the bare timber walls with wall board.

From this start, most of the Japanese families have made attractive and livable quarters with their own decorations and furniture made from scrap lumber left over from camp construction. Housewives who had worked in fertile California's gardens dug up cactus to plant outside their doors and windows.

All center residents eat in mess halls, which feed 250 to 300 persons at a meal and are staffed by Japanese cooks, waiters and dishwashers. William Wells, chief project steward, says the average cost of each meal is 13 cents.

Creamed or fried fish and rice are frequently served, Wells explains, "because that's what the old Japanese like. If the old folks are satisfied, they'll keep the young ones quiet."

Wells must be right. WPR staff members say the young Japanese come away from fish meals with wry faces, but they make no complaint. They save their Americanized appetite for the next meal of meat loaf and mashed potatoes.

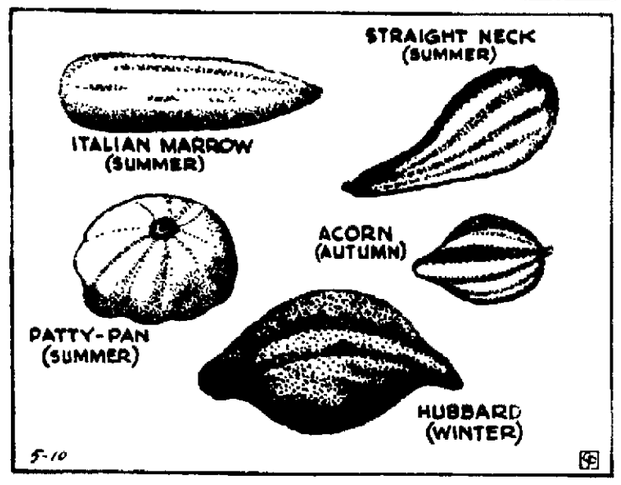
A five-strand barbed wire fence surrounds the building area and no one can leave the camp without a permit signed by Director Lindley. Passes to Lamar, the nearest town, are limited to one a month for each resident.

A military police company checks all departures and admissions at the gates. MPS also are stationed in watch towers along the fences. Internal policing is handled by Japanese directed by H. M. Tomlinson, internal security officer.

About 4,000 of the center's population work in jobs necessary to maintain the community. Wages are $16 a month for unskilled jobs like garbage and coal hauling and $19 a month for trained positions, such as nurses and teachers.

Center residents agreeing to take farm, timber-cutting, shop work or domestic jobs on the outside must have leave clearances which are granted only after checks with the federal bureau of investigation or navy or army intelligence.

Today's VICTORY GARDEN-GRAPH



Squashes In Victory Garden Are Fine Source of Vitamins.

By DEAN HALLIDAY

Released by Central Press Ass'n.

Only within recent years has it been learned that the squash contains remarkable quantities of vitamins. It is for this reason that squashes are so highly recommended for inclusion in the Victory garden. As they are harvested it is urged that an abundance of this healthful vegetable be included in meals prepared for children. Squashes are an excellent source of vitamin A and they also contain appreciable amounts of B1, B2, C and G.

The various varieties of squashes may be classified as two types—summer and winter. These types are illustrated in the accompanying Garden-Graph.

In the small Victory garden only the bush varieties of summer squashes should be included, for they do not require too much space and the returns warrant their use. In the larger Victory garden where space is not at a premium, the winter vining squashes can be planted. With these squashes, however, space in the garden can be conserved by planting them among the rows of corn, in the same way that farmers grow pumpkins in the cornfield.

Winter squashes require a long season and therefore they should be planted as early as possible. A time saving method involves planting them indoors in paper cups in the first part of May and setting them outdoors the first of June when all danger of frost is past.

Books For Children

(Available at Mansfield Public Library)

Among the new books which will be added to the children's section of the Mansfield Public Library Saturday are two which help children to understand something about the countries where the war is being fought without making them to feel the horrors of the fighting.

WINGS OF NIKIAS, by Josephine Blackstock, is the story of Nikias, a young boy in Greece who loves his country and the age-old stories from its past. When the danger of war came he was able to take warning to soldiers in the mountains and to save the regiment. He earned a trip in a modern airplane which he greatly admired.

In SIGURDUR IN ICELAND, by Visscher Shinn, by means of photographs and simple text, the visit of a young American boy to Iceland is delightfully described. Sigurdur's parents were Icelandic by birth but lived in America and the boy was allowed to visit his grandparents near the Smoky Bay of Reykjavik. In this beautiful land of fire and ice it was never dark on a summer night and there were strange and wonderful sights to see every day.

Buried Piggy Bank Yields a Banner Harvest

KEARNEY, N. J.—(INS)—Annoyed at how readily he succumbed to the temptation to rob the "piggy" bank in which he saved his silver, Martin Scharloo, a shipyard worker, four years ago conceived the idea for a novel bank.

The idea worked, and today Scharloo has a $1,000 war bond, his wife has a $50 fur coat and he has been having a wonderful time with $117 that is left over.

Although it combined excavation, plumbing and horticulture, Scharloo's idea is really quite simple.

He dug a hole, placed in it a gallon jug. Put a long pipe in the jug through which he could deposit silver dollars and half dollars and then covered up the hole.

To conceal the pipe, he planted a rose bush on the spot.

In the years which followed, Scharloo admits he had been often tempted to get some extra change from his subterranean bank. But it was too much work to dig it up and he waited until pay day.

Recently, he discovered his "bank" wouldn't take any more money. He dug it up and found it contained a total of $917.

Lively Ball and Arguments Return to Major Leagues

Sport Podge by Rex Hess

This is Rex (Well Fed) Hess tapping the typewriter with one hand and reaching for the bicarbonate with the other and with the two I make my living, which may be a heck of a way to make a living but it still beats working for it.

Or—this is Rex (Bowling Banquet) Hess, looking for a social secretary who will always know the answer when I ask "Who am I eating on tonight?"

And if this knife and fork league continues much longer, I will soon be able to roll faster than I can walk, but when it comes to golf I will just have to lean over slightly and swing around the corporation limits.

Until the social secretary with all the answers is hired, I'll just have to write down the schedules as it develops and hope the memo is handy whin I need it.

For this week, starting with yesterday noon there was the Inter-City Association directors' dinner at Roth's restaurant, and last night there was the City "A" league banquet at the Liederkranz club, and fortunately I am still able to wear the same belt.

Art Hilborn, Pickles Hipp and Al Vogel went through the same program, but Brig Young did better than that. He made both dinners, and ate one at home before going to the noon affair. What a man!

Now for the rest of this week's K. & F. league schedule:

Tonight it's the mixed doubles league at Yingling's Tavern, tomorrow night the Transportation league at the Sons of Herman, Thursday night the scorekeepers for the Ohio Moose and Inter-City tournaments at the Moose, and Saturday night, if I can make it, the Sons and Daughters of Herman bowling teams.

What happened to Wednesday and Friday? That's what I need a secretary for. I don't know the answers.

I am not yet convinced that Mansfield keglers bowl all winter just for the pleasure of feeding the sports writer in the springtime, but there is no evidence to the contrary.

But why all the exercise? I can be talked into the idea that a little nourishment is a good thing without their getting into physical condition to back their arguments with threat of physical violence.

A sign of spring I never miss. Round after round of steak done Swiss.

Nelson Sweeps All Rifle Club Honors

T. Nelson swept all events in the Mansfield Muzzle Loader Rifle club shoot Saturday with a mark of 618 in the 30-yard off-hand matches a string of 246 inches in the off-hand match, and a string of 152 inches for three shots in the 50 yard rest match.

E. Wagner was second in the first event with 55.5 per cent, and J. Adams had 50 per cent. In the second event J. Adams was second with a string of 2.8 inches and E. Adams had 3.53.

* * *

In the third event J. Baldinger was second with a string of 18 inches, and T. Nelson third with 1.81 in addition to his first.

Colonels Take Two From Hens

(By Central Press)

The Louisville Colonels moved up a notch to sixth place in the American association by taking a doubleheader from Toledo Sunday, 1 to 0 and 4 to 3. The Mudhens took over the spot vacated by the Colonels.

Although splitting a doubleheader, the Columbus Red Birds maintained their position as league-leaders. The Birds were nosed out by the Indianapolis Indians, 1 to 0 in the opener, but came back to take the seven-inning nightcap 2 to 1.

* * *

Milwaukee and St. Paul also broke even with Charley Grimm's outfit winning the first, 2 to 1, but going down 11 to 3 in the seven-inning windup.

Minneapolis at Kansas City was postponed.

Boudreau Benches Himself

Eddie Turchin Subs, Wins Game In 13th.

CLEVELAND — (AP) — Manager Lou Boudreau benched himself yesterday and the player who replaced him won a game for the Cleveland Indians.

Eddie Turchin went to shortstop for the Redskins after Boudreau retired in favor of a pinch hitter in the seventh inning of the first contest with the Browns at St. Louis.

The 24-year-old rookie broke 5-5 deadlock in the 13th when he singled to score Mike Naymick from third.

The Tribe pilot sent Turchin to shortstop in the nightcap but batted for him in the sixth.

"Not only haven't I been hitting but I haven't felt right at the plate," Lou said. "I just thought I'd better lay off a few days." He declined to say how long his self-imposed holiday would last.

Jim Bagby went after his fourth straight victory in the opener but retired after hurling 11 frames. Naymick relieved him and received credit for the win.

The Browns won the nightcap 7 to 5. Umpire Ernie Stewart called it because of darkness at the end of six and a half innings and his action prompted a vigorous protest from the Indians, who contended that a good two hours of daylight remained.

The Redskins are inactive until Wednesday when they engage Washington in a night game at the stadium.

REDS TAKE REST

CINCINNATI — (INS) — The Cincinnati Redlegs had a day of rest today and most fans agreed they needed it.

The Chicago Cubs defeated the Reds in both ends of a double bill yesterday, 13 to 2 and 4 to 3, to drop Cincinnati to third place in the current National league pennant chase.

Big Paul Derringer breezed to a triumph over his former Redleg teammates in the opener, while the Windy City maulers sent Bucky Walters to an early shower in the nightcap.

The third inning proved to be the winning one for the Cubs in both games. They jumped on Elmer Riddle for five runs in the third frame of the opener, and got to Walters for three tallies in the same inning of the finale.

Big Bill Lee started for the Cubs in the nightcap and hurled shutout ball for the first five innings. But, aided by a pinchhit single by Steve Mesner, the Reds scored three runs in the sixth inning and Henry Wyse was rushed to the Chicago mound to blank the Reds the rest of the way.

Stanley Hack was the leading Cub swinger with six hits in eight trips to the plate while Lonnie Frey got four for eight for Cincinnati.

The Reds were to leave for their first swing through the east today. They engage the Fort Monmouth soldiers at the New Jersey camp tomorrow before taking on the Philadelphia Phillies for a three game series at the Quaker City. Johnny Vander Meer, who will be after his fifth triumph, is scheduled to work the opener for the Rhinelanders.

New London To Tackle Tygers

The Class B championship New London high school track team will meet Mansfield's Tygers in a twilight meet at Stadium field tomorrow night at 7 o'clock, Coach Harry Mehock of the Tygers announced today.

New London recently won the "B" title at the Ohio Wesleyan Relays, and followed it up with the championship of the Clearview Relays.

This probably will close the dual meet season for the Tygers who are pointing for the district meet to be held here May 22. Three entries for the "B" division of the district meet were received today from Oak Harbor with 10 boys, Clyde with 20, and Sycamore, entering a miler.

Entries are expected from seven Class "A" schools.

Inter-City Changes Plan

To Hire Permanent Manager For Tourney.

Directors of the Inter-City Bowling Association yesterday voted to hire a permanent manager for future tournaments, leaving entire responsibility for conduct of the tournament up to one man, including the scheduling of teams.

Directors agreed that the only complaint on tournaments in the past has been on scheduling, and since this has been done by a committee scattered over several cities, the assistant secretary in charge of the tournament could not revise the schedule to meet requests of the bowlers.

* * *

The board also decided to extend the association to the entire state of Ohio, taking in the southern part of the state. It is still limited to cities under 50,000 population.

Average limit for Booster teams was increased from 850 to 875 pins. Next year's tournament was awarded to Tiffin.

Del Pollock of Lorain was re-elected president and L. Conners of Findlay, first vice president. Other officers are Ed Wilcox, Elyria, second vice president, Bart Blair of Mt. Vernon, third vice president and Ralph Roesch, Sandusky, fourth vice president.

Other board members re-elected were R. D. Culver, Tiffin, J. Hayes, Alliance, V. E. Bird, New Philadelphia, and Art Hilborn, Mansfield. There are two openings on the board which will be considered at the fall meeting.

* * *

The board approved the prize list with top money in the various divisions going to: Rohn's Cafe, Wadsworth, 5-man, $125; Ink's Plasterers, Fremont, Booster, $50; W. Hull and C. Shudell, Defiance, doubles, $85; and L. Moats, Defiance, singles, $65.

Possum Golfers Hit Par Scores

They're beginning to shoot some scores out at Possum Run these days.

Ted Etzel yesterday turned a par card for the 18-hole layout with 72, after touring the inside nine in 33, or three under par.

Carl Wiseman got a one-under-par 35 on the inside with a bogey five on No. 9.

PHILADELPHIA — (INS) — Gus Dorazio, Philadelphia heavyweight, ruled a 7-5 favorite today to whip Joe Baksi, of Kulpmont, in their 10-round meeting at the Arena tonight.

SPORTS ROUNDUP

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.

NEW YORK—(AP)—Maybe this isn't the best time to be talking football, since spring practice this year proved only that nobody knows what football will be like next fall . . . but when you talk to Jack Lavelle, eventually you talk football, and generally you come up with some fresh ideas on the subject . . . Jack, you remember is the old Notre Dame guard who coaches a New York high school and in his spare time is about the best grid scout in the business.

GOOD SCOUT

The suggestion that "informal" football may do away with a lot of scouting brings a pained look to Lavelle's round face . . . "scouting," he argues, "is what makes football games good. It's football's new service for the quick dissemination of information. A scout sees some new trick or a new defense, brings back the dope and the first thing you know all the coaches are trying it—if they have the material . . . do you know," Jack says, "I've actually had college coaches ask me what was meant by a looping line? . . . How long do you think it would take them to learn things without scouting?"

TODAY'S GUEST STAR

Don Donaghey, Philadelphia Evening Bulletin: "The swing shift ball games will be a help to the war try if the players keep this in mind—drowsy defense workers don't want to go to a ball park to be rocked to sleep."

Marine baseball fans at the Jacksonville, Fla., naval air station are excited about their brother double play combination of Edward and Henry Mehllo of Someville, Mass. Eddie, 20 years old, looks and plays a lot like Phil Rizzuto. . . . Capt. Johnny Pingel, former Detroit Lions half back, has been transferred to Fort Benning, Ga. . . . Joe Gillen, former assistant track superintendent at Pimlico claims that the only things he misses at Camp Livingston, La., is the flood of applications for stalls that used to hit him twice a year.

Jockey Likes Count Now

Longdon Was Scared By That 'Nutty' Nag.

By SID FEDER

NEW YORK—(AP)—You wouldn't say Jockey Johnny Longden was scared that morning at Belmont about a year ago, but he jumped off Count Fleet's back as if he'd suddenly discovered some extra sharp nails in the saddle.

Very gingerly and cautiously, he led the tall, lanky colt back to Trainer Don Cameron. And very rapidly, he turned the halter over.

"You," he declared flatly, "can take this crazy animal and ship him to Shanghai or grind him up into hamburgers. I want no part of him. He's nuts."

Yet, Cameron says it was right there that he discovered he had the makings of a great horse.

"Y'know," Cameron said today as he returned from Pimlico, where the Count easily added the Preakness Saturday to his earlier Kentucky Derby triumph, "Longden probably had something there, at that. I put him up on the Count that morning for a workout. The Count must have spotted a shadow or a bit of paper or something on the track.

"Anyway, I've never seen a horse take off like that. He jumped as if he'd been hit on the back with a paddle. Before you knew it, he'd leaped an eighth of a mile and headed right for the outside fence.

"Johnny pulled him up just in time, or both of 'em might have been hurt going into the railing.

"You see, when the Count took off like that, I had the stop watch on him. I just happened to catch him between poles for an eighth of a mile while he was running away. And when I looked at the watch, I wouldn't believe it. He'd gone that eighth in 10 2-5 seconds.

This, it might be pointed out, is practically flying. There is no world record listed for an eighth of a mile, but just by way of comparison, the fastest a quarter-mile ever has been run was 21¾ seconds, by a little thing called Bob Wade, in 1890.

Saturday, he ran off and hid from Blue Swords and a couple of other "guys named Joe" and now he's pointing for the Belmont stakes June 5 to round out the triple crown. And already they're talking of a possible three-corner scramble in the Pimlico Special this fall after Whirlaway and Alsab come back to the wars.

Dragons of Dugouts Aroused to Action

Durocher Banished, Pirates Have Riot, Fist Fight In Washington.

By JUDSON BAILEY
(AP Sports Writer)

THE connection may not be clear, but the lively ball and lively arguments returned to the major leagues together. For some reason the boisterous boys who usually are stormier than the North Atlantic have been docile this spring. The balata ball has been blamed for everything else and it might as well be held responsible for this, too.

At any rate, when the two big leagues quit playing with bean bags this week-end and extra-base hits started rattling off the fences, the noise aroused the dragons of the dugouts.

Manager Leo Durocher of the Brooklyn Dodgers got into an argument with Umpire Babe Pinelli in Boston, was ejected from Saturday's game and was fined $75. The same day Manager Mel Ott of the Giants was bounced at Philadelphia and Coach Art Fletcher of the New York Yankees was tossed out by an umpire for the third time in his 17 years in the big show.

Sunday, Manager Frank Frisch of the Pittsburgh Pirates and most of his players joined in a tirade against Umpire Jocko Conlan and fans at Forbes field threw bottles and cushions on the field in protest of a decision at the plate. And in Washington, two players, Ellis Clary of the Senators and Catcher Johnny Peacock of the Boston Red Sox, came to blows.

These antics weren't able to steal the show, however, from the revitalized balata ball, which was introduced in the National league Saturday and in the American league Sunday. The 147,000 fans who turned out for the eight doubleheaders on the Sabath seemed well satisfied. In 16 games there was not a single shutout.

Three home runs were made by the Yankees in beating the Philadelphia Athletics 13-1 in the first game. The A's won the second game 4-3.

Washington beat the Red Sox twice, 3-2 in ten innings and 8-2. Alex Carrasquel, the big Venezuelan, ignored a tatto of 11 hits in the second session to last the route.

Pitcher Bill Dietrich of the Chicago White Sox failed to duck a liner by Rip Radcliff in the fourth inning of the first game with Detroit and was smashed on his pitching arm. No bones were broken. Chicago went on to win 3-1, but the Tigers took the nightcap 4-1.

The Cleveland Indians nosed out the St. Louis Browns 6-5 in 13 innings and then were beaten 7-5 in the second game, halted by darkness.

The Philadelphia Phillies swept a doubleheader from the New York Giants 3-2 and 3-1, running up an unheard of winning streak of three games. The attendance was 24,943.

Brooklyn's pace-setters were held to a split at Boston. The Dodgers won the opener 5-4 in ten innings and then were beaten 2-1 on Jim Tobin's four-hit knuckleballing.

The St. Louis Cardinals moved back into second place by beating the Pirates 8-1 and then playing a 3-3 tie game which was halted after nine innings by the Sunday curfew in Pittsburgh.

The Chicago Cubs, with a revamped lineup, clubbed the Cincinnati Reds 13-2 and 4-3.

League Wants Twelve Teams

City A-Loop Sets Aim High For '44.

Still entertaining visions of a bigger league, City "A" loop keglers at their banquet last night at the Liederkranz club decided to set their sights for a 12-team organization "and settle for what they can get."

They admitted possibility of 12 teams under wartime conditions appear very slim.

The league voted to eliminate prizes for high averages, but retained individual prizes for high games and matches.

Carl Phillipon was elected president for next season. Brig Young vice president, and Harold Selby was re-elected secretary without opposition.

Bissman Birdie Brands walked off with first prize for high 3-games during the season with 3049, Eagles had 3025, Liederkranz and Orange St. Cafe 3019 each.

Liederkranz took high game with 1113, Bissman's had 1100 even, and Buckeye Beers 1044.

Orlie Grable rolled 692 for high series, Selby had 680 and Johnny Bernat 679. Winnie Cleckner also had 679 but didn't roll enough games to get in the prize money.

* * *

Skeet Wolfe won high game with 275, rolled in a match which doubled for Inter-City competition. W. Huck had 266 and Ira Keefer 265.

Supreme Court Upholds Chain Broadcast Regulations

PROTESTS OF TWO JURISTS VOTED DOWN

Frankfurter Writes Opinion Knocking Out Appeal of NBC and Columbia.

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON—The supreme court today overrode vigorous objections of two members and upheld by a 5 to 2 vote far-reaching regulations over chain radio broadcasting promulgated by the federal communications commission.

The high tribunal, in an opinion written by Justice Felix Frankfurter, ruled that congress had given the FCC broad power to regulate the radio industry under its power to grant or deny licenses for operation of broadcasting stations.

The issue was raised on separate appeals by the National Broadcasting company and the Columbia Broadcasting system from an adverse decision of a three-judge federal court in New York.

In its appeal NBC was joined by the Woodmen of the World Life Insurance company and Stromberg - Carlson Telephone Manufacturing company, owners of stations.

The order, first promulgated May 2, 1941, was attacked by the radio companies as "arbitrary and capricious" and beyond the power of the commission.

Justice Frankfurter delivered the opinion. Justices Murphy and Roberts dissented, while Justices Black and Rutledge did not participate.

Regulations attacked by the companies included:

Requiring networks to dispose of some individually owned stations, and requiring NBC to divest itself of one network. Since the order was issued Blue Network, Inc., was formed to take over one of the two NBC networks.

Regulations requiring drastic revision of contracts between networks and affiliated, separately owned broadcasting stations.

The regulation regarded as most important by networks forbids continuance of the present system of network options on station time. The regulation permits a non-exclusive option limited to a 56-day period, but not good against a second network.

City Seeks To Get Material To Treat Unpaved Streets

Mayor W. J. Locke said he was negotiating today with the state highway department in another attempt to obtain materials for dust proofing Mansfield's unpaved streets.

The city was turned down last week by the War Production board on a priority rating for MC-1, an asphalt base material to replace standard road oil, unobtainable this year.

The transportation problem rather than the shortage of materials was listed by WPB as the reason the city's request was refused. The material is shipped in tank cars which are needed for hauling supplies for the armed forces, the WPB said.

If the city fails to get the anti-dust material this time, streets probably will not be treated this summer, said City Engineer W. C. Statler.

SCHOOL EXCEEDS ITS BOND GOAL

The school will attempt to "go over the top" again this week in paper and magazine collection. Pupils hope to realize a $75 profit from this drive, with the money being used to purchase duplicating machines for the school paper. "The Western Wind-up." and for pictures for the primary department.

Zinn, Mansfield, pleaded guilty to a charge of failure to observe a stop sign and was fined $5 and costs.

Ralph W. Calhoun, Ashland, arrested by patrolmen Saturday night on U. S. Route 42 northeast of Mansfield, was fined $10 and costs in Ashland police court today for failing to observe a stop sign.

LIFTS ORDER

Judge Rules Out Injunction In Angell Refuge Case.

Injunction of Charles R. Callihan, 533 Park avenue west, against Helen, Florence and Charles H. Workman, proprietors of "Angell Refuge" was dismissed by Judge G. E. Kalbfleisch in common pleas court today.

The judge found that the evidence presented by Callihan did not substantiate his claim that the Workman residence at 521 Park avenue west, where the animals were formerly kept, had been a nuisance since May 1.

His action was filed Sept. 1, 1942 while the Workmans' in an amended answer filed March 4, 1943, had promised to remove by May 1 whatever "annoyance" might have existed by changing location of their institution to a North Adams street address.

TRICOLOR FLIES AGAIN IN TUNIS

French Flag Borne Back Into City By Dusty Troops After Nazi Defeat.

TUNIS (Delayed)—The Tricolor of France was borne back in triumph to Tunis this morning after six months of Nazi occupation.

To the stirring blare of military bands, French troops with their long bayonets glinting in the early morning sun, marched into the city in tight columns to take over formal possession.

British troops had taken Tunis by storm Saturday. But this was the first official entry into the city and the French who for months had battled the invaders on the jagged mountain heights down around Bou Arada were accorded the honor of taking it.

First marched a battalion of dusty, hard bitten infantry. Behind them trundled armored cars, American-built lend-lease jeeps and a couple of squadrons of motorcyclists with the North African dust still thick on their machines.

It was still early, and the first worshippers were attending mass in the cathedral when the brass bands brought crowds flocking out into the streets.

People in nightclothes appeared on balconies and threw flowers, while women dashed hysterically into the roadway to hug the soldiers. Occasionally someone would run out from the curb to ask news of a relative in the bitter fighting in the hills down south.

VETOES BILL

Bricker Rejects Proposal For Ohio Military Reserve.

COLUMBUS —(AP)— Gov. John W. Bricker vetoed today a bill creating an Ohio military reserve to supplement the Ohio state guard because it contained a clause forbidding use of the reserve in strikes or labor disputes.

Bricker asserted any military organization in Ohio should be subject to "complete jurisdiction" of the adjutant general and the governor "without restrictions to use or services."

The reserve would have been composed of local organizations furnishing their own weapons and serving without pay, and would have been used in times of emergency. At labor's insistence, the clause prohibiting use of the reserve in labor disputes was inserted.

Bricker remarked he felt the Ohio state guard was ample to handle any emergencies in the state.

CHECK ON HOME OF 2 CHILDREN

Police today asked Mrs. Marie Menchan, county humane officer, to investigate a Wayne street home where two small children were reported to have been left alone in a dark house on a number of occasions.

Officers went to the house about midnight Saturday after a passerby said he heard a child wailing inside. A boy and girl, both under six years old, were crying because they were frightened in the dark, police said.

A neighbor told officers the children were often left alone while their parents were away and one or both of the children frequently came to the neighbor's home at night to wait until the parents returned.

OHIO MINERS PREPARED TO RENEW STRIKE

Declare They Won't Enter Pits May 18 Unless They Get a New Contract.

(By International News Service)

COLUMBUS — Ohio and West Virginia Panhandle coal miners will refuse "to trespass on company property" if a contract is not signed with the United Mine Workers' union before midnight, May 18, John Owens, president of the union's District Six, asserted today.

"Friday, the United Mine Workers office and scale committee of Ohio and the Panhandle," said Owens, "unanimously agreed that if there was no contract at midnight, Tuesday, May 18, miners will refuse to trespass on company property. We are taking the position, no contract, no work."

"We assume that when the president directed Mr. Ickes, solid fuel administrator, to seize and direct operation of the mines with whom we agreed to work during 15 days, that the government would liquidate its obligations as managers of mines to work out a rate of wages and a working contract with representatives of the miners' organization.

"If this collective bargaining procedure enunciated by the president is not followed out there will be suspension of operations of all mines in Ohio and the Panhandle of West Virginia at midnight, May 18."

On the wage question, Owens asserted that "we assume that our government would not expect coal miners who produce a product that's indispensable, to work and receive an annual wage that will not permit them to live under American standards of existence."

"We urge Mr. Ickes," Owens continued, "to assume his responsibility and work out a settlement predicated upon the equities involved in this controversy.

"Political fence building is not good Americanism in the crisis that faces the American people. Our demands should not, must not and will not be used as a political football."

Asked what position District Six miners took on the current war labor hearing which UMW representatives are not attending, Owens said "it is perfectly silly to expect the miners to accept a mathematical formula which could be handed to them by some government clerk."

Strikers Return To Ohio Mines

BELLAIRE—(INS)—Miners who struck at two of Ohio's largest mines in protest against work stoppage fines returned to work today.

William Kennedy, United Mine Workers' organizer, reported miners at the Hanna Coal company's Willow Grove mine and at the Rail and River Coal company's No. 6 mine, voted to return to work.

"The men," said Kennedy, "voted to return to work and take up protests of fines through regular channels."

OCD MEETING CALLED

Chiefs of civilian defense services in the city were called today by Judge G. E. Kalbfleisch, coordinator, to meet at 4:30 p. m. Friday in civilian defense headquarters in the city building.

STOCK MARKET SHOWS ADVANCE BY FRACTIONS

Steel Producers Discover Output Well Covered In Some Divisions.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK — Fractional advances were well distributed in today's early stock market proceedings.

Improved at a moderately active opening were U. S. Steel, Northern Pacific, International Harvester, Standard Oil (NJ), Goodrich, Nash-Kelvinator, General Electric, Deere and Paramount Picture.

Attention was given the survey of the magazine "Steel" which said some producers in this field were finding their output for the third quarter being rapidly covered in certain products. Two important makers of hot-rolled sheets, it was added, were booked to capacity for the period and were refusing further orders.

NEW YORK — (AP) — For ten minutes this mornnig trading on the New York Stock exchange was handled without benefit of messengers, pages and tube operators, officers of the exchange announced.

More than 300 regular floor workers remained in their locker rooms as business opened at 10 a. m. they appeared on the floor and assumed their posts at exactly 10:10 a. m.

Officers of the stock exchange said the workers had given no explanation for their "delaying action," but said members believed the move was to call attention to the fact no decision had been handed down by the war labor board concerning demands for a ten per cent raise in pay, which was certified for action before the WLB in January.

TENDER BEEF

PULLMAN, Wash. — (UP) — A method of "tenderizing" cheaper grades of beef by bathing it in ultra violet ray light was described at a Washington State college agricultural experiment station conference recently by Dr. Jennie McIntosh, assistant home economist.

Dr. McIntosh said experimental work showed that aging meat at a temperature of 50 degrees with ultra-violet light to prevent spoilage of the surface makes it more tender than at 34 degrees.

GRIEVANCE BOX

CAMP EDWARDS, Mass. — (UP) — A soldier with a "gripe" can get it off his chest very easily these days.

Strong "airing" is the recommended system. A "grievance box" has been installed where disgruntled men can flay their top-kicks and offer criticisms or suggestions with anonymous safety.

If officers feel further consultation will help the situation, they list the number on the envelope and have a private session with the complainant.

Mountains rise to heights of 24 000 feet in Lisuland, on the border between Burma and China.

THEATERS

Revives Old Tunes.

Alice Faye sings several old time ballads as well as new songs in the 20th Century-Fox technicolor musical, "Hello, Frisco, Hello," currently showing at the Ohio. The picture is built around the life of San Francisco's old Barbary coast and features, along with Miss Faye, John Payne, Lynn Bari and Jack Oakie. A group of four entertainers are struggling for recognition. Miss Faye plays the part of the "toast of the town," but she carries the torch for Payne, who comes from the wrong side of the tracks and is out to buy the town. Oakie supplies the laughs as usual.

Diplomacy.

William Tracy, playing the part of Sergeant Doubleday in "Fall In," now showing at the Madison, used a neat bit of diplomacy to save himself a "calling down" in the film. Tracy was seen rushing into a drug store to make a telephone call and in his haste, nearly knocked a middle-aged lady down. The lady was ready to hand him a verbal beating, but upon leaving the phone booth Doubleday said politely to the woman's daughter, "Oh, I'm sorry, I almost knocked your sister down." Needless to say, he was forgiven. Lana Turner stars in the other attraction at the Madison, "Slightly Dangerous."

Ladd Stars.

Dedicated to the proposition that American gangsters are gentlemen with hearts of gold in contrast to the mobsters of Nazi Germany, Paramount's spy drama, "Lucky Jordon," is now showing at the Ritz. Alan Ladd is seen in the title role. He plays a gangster who tries to put the "fix" on the U. S. Army when his draft number comes up. When he finally lands in uniform, he promptly goes A. W. O. L., kidnaps a canteen hostess, steals an automobile and heads for the big city. Ladd suddenly turns patriotic and rounds up spies for the F. B. I. Ken Maynard stars in the co-attraction, "Wild Horse Stampede."

Inside Germany.

An authentic picture of Nazism in operation inside Germany recorded by a school teacher who lived there for years and saw it at first hand is given in RKO's "Hitler's Children," now at the Park. Based on the factual book, "Education for Death," by Gregor Ziemer, the film is a love story played against the sinister philosophy which is being instilled into German youth. Tim Holt, Bonita Granville, Kent Smith, H. B. Warner and Otto Kruger are featured. Radio's "Mad Russian," Bert Gordon, is starred in the co-attraction "Laugh Your Blues Away."

OPA LAUNCHES ROLL-BACK OF FOOD PRICES

Dollars-Cents Schedules Are Posted In 130 Cities To Start Cuts.

stop the spiraling cost of living began, there were these developments:

1. Price Administrator Prentiss M. Brown announced in a radio interview that top prices for beef, veal, lamb and mutton will become effective throughout the country on May 17; promised the housewife that regardless of where she lives, she soon will know exactly the top price she may be charged for every essential food—rationed or unrationed.

2. George Meany, secretary-treasurer of the American Federation of Labor, an advocate of rolling back prices to last May charged that it is not enough "to snip off a penny here and two cents there when basic food items have gone up 20, 25 or 30 cents per pound." Of the proposed $300,000,000 subsidy program to allow a 10 per cent roll-back of meat, butter and coffee prices, Meany said it was "peanuts" compared with the $96,000,000,000 being spent annually for war production.

3. Chairman Clarence Cannon, D., Mo., of the house appropriations committee, expressing congressional indignation about the plan to by-pass congress in the subsidy program by obtaining funds from the reconstruction finance corporation, hinted that he might lead a fight to amend future RFC appropriations to prohibit such uses. Congress has steadfastly refused to approve subsidy programs, he said, because they are "unsound and unAmerican."

4. The labor policy committee of OPA, composed of representatives of the CIO, AFL and Railroad Brotherhoods, promised full co-operation with OPA's new program "insofar as it represents a genuine roll-back in the cost of living." It previously had sought a roll-back to last May's price levels.

OPA's study of prices in mining communities was taken at the request of President Roosevelt in answer to United Mine Workers' charges that prices in coal towns had risen more sharply than elsewhere and that their $2-a-day wage increase demand, therefore, was justified.

"Although a precise estimate is impossible, and although the degree of noncompliance varies greatly in different areas," OPA's report said, "it is perhaps fair to say that actual prices on the commodities checked, considering the sales below ceiling prices, averaged about five per cent above the ceiling prices."

That was the basis for Emerson's conclusion that a nationwide overall food price reduction of five per cent is possible with effective enforcement along these lines:

1. Dollars and cents ceiling prices along with a simplified food price regulation to be pushed to immediate conclusion.

2. Education of retailers to their obligations under OPA regulations —particularly what records they must keep.

3. Doubling the present enforcement staff of 1,000 investigators.

4. Co-ordination of enforcement efforts with a volunteer program; volunteer price panels working with the professional staff.

5. Enlistment of public through consumers organizations, labor unions, civic associations and other groups which must lead in the education program.

Steps have been taken in the direction of such an enforcement program. The new community-wide dollars-and-cents prices are one of them. Effective in small stores today, they will be extended to the chains and super-markets later. For the present they cover poultry, cabbage, onions, fluid milk, bread, eggs, soap, butter, packaged cheese, sugar, cereals, evaporated and condensed milk, coffee, macaroni, noodles, shortening, cooking and salad oils, flour an other items. Brown promised that additions will be made each week until all the important food items are covered.

IN THE CAPITAL-- By Raymond Clapper

STOCKHOLM—(By Wireless)—When you consider that Sweden is surrounded by Nazis, that l communication is cut off except by air though e is dependent on the outside for coal, foodstuffs nd materials, it is amazing how little life here is fected by the war.

Clothing is rationed, but people all seem well essed. Only a third of a small bar of soap is allowed each person each week, yet everyone is spotlessly clean I have seen numerous kitchens, all spotless.

Clapper

Social services for which Sweden is famous continue unaffected by the war. Expansion has been checked, although an enormous hospital is just being finished I saw rows of new low price cottages being built, with the aid of government subsidy—owners put up prefabricated houses, supplied by the vernment on long cheap credit The owner's labor accepted as down payment with 60 years owed to pay the balance.

I spent a whole day looking at apartments, mes, nurseries and hospitals with Mrs. Myrdal, fe of Professor Gunnar Myrdal, who is well-own in America because of extensive investigan of social conditions there. She says that Swen has advanced well toward its goal in state edicine, still has much to do in housing, and is ging badly in schools.

The school age is seven to 14 when 80 per cent to work, 10 per cent go to college and 10 per nt go to trade schools—against an average 10-ar compulsory schooling in America, with over f continuing into high school

The trend in medicine in toward socialization blic hospitals dominate with 96 per cent of all ls in the country About half of the doctors are blicly employed either full or part time I saw one of the finest hospitals where the real cost is $4 a day, the patient paying barely one dollar with the remaining cost divided between the city and state.

The heavy emphasis on public health is due to the alarm in recent years over a declining birth rate and an almost stationary population. Hence the excellent cheap hospital care, especially in maternity cases. To low income families the government gives a heavy rent rebate for extra children—30 per cent for three to 70 per cent rebate for eight or more children.

Stockholm has six municipal day nurseries, 15 co-operatives, and numerous private ones which the government is considering taking over in its campaign for saving children. I rode back from the hospital with the board chairman, a business man, who complained that this was all very expensive.

Taxes run 20 per cent for low incomes because of heavy defense expenditures Rural districts and provincial communities feel that they are taxed for expensive Stockholm social services while getting little for themselves, although hospital care with transportation is provided for all parts of Sweden.

While there is some tapering off, there is no disposition to stop or turn back. The Social Democrats seem solidly in control. The Conservatives on the whole have accepted changes far more readily than those in America. They figure that good living conditions and public health pay long run dividends.

Of course there has been no bombing, but shelters are everywhere. Sweden is preparing for any eventuality, but actually it does not seem to me that anybody here really expects trouble. All seem to be set to ride through the war without getting singed very much more than now.

There is much talk here about defense, and I have seen some fine developments, but I doubt that any realist thinks Sweden could resist very long if anybody wanted to pay the price to take it.

FAIR ENOUGH-- By Westbrook Pegler

UCSON, Ariz -A little while ago, the Milwaukee Journal ran an editorial pointing up question to which many of us would like an wer.

he question is "has Willie Bioff or George wne, the union racketeers of the movie and e industry, ever spent a day in prison of their ent term of 10 and 8 years, respectively?

Pegler

The Journal had remarked that these two "are now in prison."

These dispatches had said that they were not then and never had spent a single hour in prison

Challenged by a reader, the Journal put the question to W. T Hammack acting director of the bureau of prisons of the department of justice and Mr. Hammack gave an evasive answer He said "both men are serving sentences in federal institutions" "federal institution," is not necessarily a n. The New York house of detention, for mple, is not a prison. It is a place of idleness ease. These men were sentenced to prison at the time of the discussion, both were in New York house of detention and had been e for a considerable time before.

ore than a year ago a rumor was circulated Bioff was doing his time in a minimum rity camp in Arizona which is distinctly not rison, although it is "a federal institution." the warden discourages the term "prisoner" reference to his guests It is known to emen and criminals as a country club Upon ing that Bioff was in a minimum security eral institution" in Arizona, I caused an inquiry e made in Washington and word came back both Bioff and Browne were in Leavenworth, h is a real prison whose inmates work at labor. Some months later, there was another r that these two were not in prison and her inquiry brought the same answer.

st winter, hearing for the third time that and Browne were not in prison at hard but in a "federal institution under detention," ew York. I put the question direct to an ant to Matthias Correa, the federal district attorney, who had convicted them of flagrant extortion. Mr Correa's assistant, in his absence, admitted that the men were in the New York house of detention but said they "had been" in prison. I then asked a congressman who had been interested in the elimination of union rackets, to ask the department of justice for a direct answer to a straight question and his reply to me was that they had never been in prison

It should be possible for any citizen to ascertain at any time whether a convicted criminal is serving his time according to the verdict of the jury and the judgment of the court. There is no excuse for any secrecy or evasion. On the contrary such secrecy and the evasive use of the term "federal institution," as synonym for prison are against public confidence in the department of justice We know that the department of justice can favor one prisoner for reasons sufficient to itself by keeping him in mere "detention" when he is sentenced to prison at hard labor. And we know, too, that the same department whose motives and practices are not always infallibly honest, can select a prisoner who happens to be in someone's disfavor and, for no publicly stated reason and in deepest secrecy send him to Alcatraz, selected and designed to be a hell on earth for the living dead. He can be sent to Alcatraz secretly for no reason at all.

It is understood that Bioff and Browne were "used" before a grand jury in New York to obtain indictments against other members of their underworld mob in Chicago which were handed down a few weeks ago Similarly, in their own case the department of justice "used" Joseph Schenck, a tax-cheater and perjurer, to indict and convict them. In return for that assistance, Schenck was relieved of a three-year sentence on one charge, given one year on a minor charge and allowed to serve out that year in seven months in the country club at Danbury.

Now, if the same process is followed in the case of Bioff and Browne, they too, may be given lenient treatment.

This practice is all wrong It should not be necessary to make deals with criminals and treat them as idle guests to obtain evidence and testimony to convict others. If the FBI and the prosecutors are as good as they profess to be, they should be up to the job of rounding up their own evidence That is what they are paid for

ARMY, NAVY HIT PEACE TRAINING FOR YOUTHS 18

Reject Gurney Bill as Senate Plans To Start Hearings; M'Nutt Opposes It, Too.

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON—The navy department and the War Manpower Commission today flatly rejected the Gurney bill for compulsory military training of youths 18 and over in peace time.

However, Sen. Chan Gurney (R) S. D., author of the bill which also has failed to gain public endorsement from the army said he would seek to override the attitude of the armed services and Sen. Robert Reynolds (D) N. C., chairman of the military affairs committee, revealed that hearings would be started soon.

Gurney, who pushed through the 18-19 year old draft bill last fall, said he felt that recent White House statements appear to indicate a change of heart in the administration which both army and navy may follow out later.

"The navy department has been advised by the bureau of the budget that enactment of the proposed legislation would not be in accord with the program of the president," Secretary of the Navy Frank Knox said in a letter to the senate military affairs committee.

Opposition of the Manpower Commission headed by Paul V. McNutt, was voiced in stronger detail.

"It is my belief that it is impossible to predict the conditions which will prevail at the end of the war," McNutt wrote.

"This is true both in the field of international relations and conditions within the United States," the manpower chief continued. "If this is the case, it may be unwise to enact legislation designed to cope with post war problems; it might be advisable to develop legislation when the post war problems, which must be met become evident."

McNutt also attacked the bill from the economic standpoint, asserting that it would prevent large manpower resources from entering the labor market for over a year after young men become 18.

District Attorney Says Men Sent To Field To 'Sit Out the War.'

DETROIT—(INS)—An investigation has disclosed that soldiers have been transferred from several army camps to Selfridge field (Mich.) for money, social reasons and other favors to "sit out the war," U. S. District Attorney John S. Lehr charged today.

While Lehr refused details he said his inquiry has shown that many civilians made arrangements for transfer to Selfridge before entering the service.

Lehr said his investigation has been in progress since the arrest of two Wayne county constables April 15 on charges of attempting to arrange a berth for a prospective soldier at the air field.

The investigation was brought on by the shooting of a private by the commandant at the field. Rep. Shafer of the house military affairs committee has already arrived to investigate charges of graft, favoritism and lack of discipline, intending to spend a week.

"It was the shooting that caused the investigation, but it's not the important thing We've been getting complaints about irregularities there for quite some time," he said.

In addition to his preliminary investigation Sunday, Rep Shafer had a short conference with Col. William B Wright, now commandant when Col. William T. Colman was relieved of his duties following the shooting.

HORSES FAIL TO COME BACK

Demand and Prices Go Up But Supply Doesn't, Ohio Survey Shows.

(By Associated Press)

COLUMBUS — The horse, it seems, is not staging any comeback despite the wartime machine and meat shortages.

For a time it appeared that recent shortages of farm power machinery would tend to increase breeding of horses and mules in Ohio but animal husbandry experts blasted that illusion today.

The demand for draft horses and market prices on the animals have increased noticeably, but not the supply, a survey showed.

Don J Kays, head of Ohio State university's animal husbandry department, ascribed several reasons for the lack of market interest in using horses in place of hard-to-get power equipment.

Most farms using tractors no longer have much machinery suitable to be drawn by horses, even if the animals were plentiful, he explained.

Horse-drawn equipment also is difficult to obtain, as well as harnesses and men skilled in handling them, Kays added.

Officials of a livestock market here said both the demand for horses and prices had mounted in the past three years and that increasing use of horse meat probably would help to make the animals scarce

The market, which handles about 300 horses weekly, reported prices had increased from $50 to $75 for draft horses in 1941 to $160 to $170 this year, most of the stock being purchased for use in Pennsylvania and West Virginia hill country.

Surveys showed 377,000 horses and colts in Ohio last Jan. 1, a 6 per cent drop from the 401,000 total the previous year.

OPA TO ALLOW 25 POUNDS OF CANNING SUGAR

That's Quota For Each Person; Method of Obtaining Ration Simplified.

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON — The OPA today authorized a maximum allowance of 25 pounds of sugar per person for home canning this summer, enabling the nation's housewives to put up 100 quarts of fruits, vegetables and preserves for each member of the family.

In a formal unveiling of the new regulations which become effective next Saturday, Price Administrator Prentiss M. Brown announced that sugar for home canning will be allotted on substantially the same basis as last year—one pound for each four quarts of food canned.

Brown urged housewives to take the fullest advantage of the new fruit and vegetable crop and provide their tables with generous home-canned supplies in order to reduce demand upon the limited civilian supply of commercially packed canned goods.

The method for obtaining home-canning sugar has been simplified considerably this year and housewives will not have to fill out the complicated official forms used last season. Applications may be made in person or by mail to local rationing boards, with the applicants required to furnish the following:

A copy of war ration book One for each person for whom home-canning sugar is sought, state total number of quarts or pounds of finished fruit to be put up; the amount of sugar to be used for making jams and jellies (not more than five pounds per person will be allowed, within the 25-pound overall maximum).

Rationing boards will record the number of pounds of sugar granted each person on the cover of the ration book and issue canning sugar allotment coupons in denominations of one, three, five and 10 pounds, permitting housewives to spread their purchases over the entire canning season

Brown emphasized that the top limit of 25 pounds of sugar per person is a "maximum" to be granted only in the relatively few cases where this large amount of fruit will be canned and preserved.

The new regulations authorize gifts of home-canned foods, but no one person may give away more than a total of 50 quarts. Any gift in excess of that figure and all sales can only be made against the collection of blue ration stamps at the rate of eight points per quart The stamps must be surrendered to the local board.

Anyone who contributes the ingredients, or the equipment, or part of the labor required for home-canning operations, however, may consume the food produced without surrendering ration points.

Foltz's parents, Mr. and Mrs. R. N. Foltz, 33 Gibson avenue, were presented a gold star, to be displayed in their home. Rev. Grover E. Swoyer read letters from Foltz's commanding officer and from an army chaplain commending the youth's bravery in line of duty.

T. D. Brown, veteran of the Spanish-American war, read the service role call.

AN APPLE FOR EVE --

By Kathleen Norris

(Copyright, 1943)

CHAPTER IV

A great many old friends came to the Gurney house for the double funeral. It was rainy, early-February weather; the big rooms were dark even when lights were lighted; shadows seemed to creep out of corners, and odors of dampness and decay were everywhere.

Some of the callers Loveday remembered; some were complete strangers. They were all gentle and sympathetic with her. Kindly women in black kissed her; the smell of their wet woolen coats and the suffocating sweet odor of flowers would always be associated for her with these strange solemn days.

"Thee'll not stay here alone in this great place, child?"

"Oh, no, Mrs. Laidlaw. I'm to go to Mrs. St. George for a while, anyway."

"Ah, thee'll be well placed there."

Larry Ingersoll left for his new job the day before the funerals, and Loveday strangely missed him. All these people were being so kind; the kitchen was filled with jars of soup and sheets of biscuits and roasted chickens and everything else that warmhearted housewives could think of as possibly being needed by that poor little Gurney girl, but she seemed to feel hunger no more than grief. She floated upon a wave of strange calm, it was as if she were watching some other girl go through all these scenes.

The St Georges she knew. They all looked alike, and they all looked as they had in her childhood Warren St. George was perhaps fifty-seven or eight, squarely built, short, gray. His manner to Loveday was cheerful, businesslike, affectionate. She had not had even the first of many talks with him before she knew that his heart was aching with concern for her.

"I was thinking," Warren St. George said to her, when on the morning of the third day the time came to lay her mother and grandmother in the old cemetery of Indian Hill, "that we will be on our way this afternoon, Loveday, say about four and take you straight to 'Aunt Laura' You used to call my wife that when you were very small, and I know she'd love to have you call her that now. I don't like the idea of your being alone in this house What do you think?"

"I think — whatever you do, Mr St George," said Loveday's deep voice with a new note of gravity in it

"You don't mind a fifty-mile drive all the way to San Francisco after-everything?"

"No No, I'll be glad to get away Annie'll pack my things and send them after me Mr St. George—" Loveday began and stopped

"Go ahead" His look was fatherly and encouraging

"That young Lawrence Ingersoll you met yesterday. We're engaged to be married as soon as he gets his job. I wanted you to know."

"Ah?" he said noncommittally. She sensed somehow that he was not quite pleased. "But you're only twenty," he went on kindly, "and I shall have tremendous responsibilities for whatever you do for the next twelve months."

"We thought perhaps we could get married in June," the girl said steadily. For a second she caught his gravely considering look, comprehended perfectly the one that succeeded it, that said, "Ah, I musn't bother the poor child now."

"I hope you'll feel," he said aloud, "that you're coming to friends who only want you to be happy, to have your life go on the way your dear mother and grandmother would have wished. It's been a great shock to you, of course, the two deaths coming within a few hours of each other. But your grandmother never would have wanted a long, lingering illness. Loveday, and she had had a good life."

"Oh, I know, I feel that! I felt it when I went in to wake her," Loveday said. "In the morning, Wednesday—was that only day before yesterday! She looked so peaceful, sleep with her hand under her cheek, the way she always slept, that I hated to tell her that Mother — Mother was gone—"

She stopped, choked Warren St George did not speak.

"You won't—you won't ask me not to marry Larry?" Loveday said after a moment, turning to face him again. The man answered her seriously.

"No, my dear. Not if you are sure that your happiness lies that way"

The hours went on somehow, somehow she moved through them The crowds were gone now; Fanny and Rodney St. George were in the hall; Wing Foo, his eyes red, came out to help with the closing of doors and carrying of bags. Fanny and Loveday got into the back of the waiting car, Rodney drove, and his father sat beside him on the front seat.

"You're going to be the greatest blessing to my mother," Fanny presently began easily "I'm getting married in March—"

"You are?" The first smile that had lighted Loveday's face for days was turned upon the other girl "Oh, who to?"

"His name is Arthur Stephen Fraser Fox. He's a Canadian," said Fanny, not daring to show how pleased she was at the reaction to this announcement. "But what I was going to say," Fanny went on "was that you will be the greatest blessing to my mother after I go away. You see, she's delicate and she only goes out to walk around the garden or perhaps be taken to a concert or on a little drive with Dad, and she gets lonely. My sister Nini is away at school, and that means that Rod will be the only one at home — Rod and Marcel."

"Marcel?"

"He's a young doctor—French. D'you speak French?"

"A little. I don't know how well. We had it at St Dominic's."

"Well, he speaks perfect English, of course; he's been here since he was about fifteen, I think. But he loves to gabble his own tongue. He's living with us; Dad knows his adopted mother. He's a war orphan. She found him in France after the big war and educated him—medical school, year in Edinburgh, everything. Now he's doing post-graduate work, and Rod and he were pals in college, so he lives with us. The reason," Fanny went on, "that I felt a little sorry about you and Larry Ingersoll—who is really terribly nice—was that I feel sure that both Marcel Villard and my brother Rod will fall for you in a big convincing way!"

Dusk had closed down upon the world when they reached San Francisco They went all the way to the water, skirting the cliffs above the Golden Gate, and stopping finally at the entrance to a pleasant walled garden, in which stood a gray timbered house with white doorways and window sashes The house was one of a rambling, garden-enclosed row that faced the city, standing only a few feet from the cliff, below which the waters of the bay rolled pebbles upon a narrow strand. To the left were the outlines of the Gate, spanned by a mystic arch of bridge in the dimming light; to the right the bay spread itself between Angel Island and the Sausalito shores, with a chain of tiny, faraway stars twinkling to show where lay Berkeley and Oakland

There was a lovely brightness and color about the house White-curtained windows followed the stairway up, flowers everywhere chairs and davenports covered with gay-flowered chintzes It was not like Loveday's conception of a city house; there was an airiness and spaciousness about it indefinitely homelike and welcoming even at this first bewildered glance. One would never feel shut in in this house, shadowed under trees; there would always be the glorious spread of open sky overhead, and the moving waters of the bay below, and the Gate where ships came out and in, and the far mountains glinting with the lights of a thousand homes.

In a spacious back bedroom, in a pillowed chair close to a stretch of wide windows, a gray-haired woman with a fresh, smiling face was seated. She held out her hand as Fan and Loveday came in. Loveday, going forward to take the hand and to stand shy and nervous and smiling before Laura St. George, felt herself drawn down for a kiss and seated on a chair beside her.

"Well, Loveday Gurney," said the motherly voice. "I'm so glad to have you here!" Loveday's eyes filled; she could not speak.

"Come on, Loveday, I'll show you your room You're next to me, and we'll have to mark up our bath hours the way they do on ships," Fanny got to her feet, tall and graceful and weary, her fur coat over her arm Isn't she nice?" she asked her mother.

Mrs. St George's wise eyes moved to Loveday smilingly.

A young dark-eyed man had come into the room, he hesitated when he saw that the expected stranger had arrived Fanny and Loveday paused on their way to the door, and Loveday saw that the newcomer was small and sinewy, with strong glasses, long hanging arms and big hands, and a dark, smiling, monkey-like face

"Loveday, Dr. Villard, Marc, this is Loveday Gurney."

"Mademoiselle." The bright eyes were full of admiration and interest; Loveday and he, whose destinies were to be so strangely interlocked, looked at each other a moment, then the girls went on to their own apartments.

LONDON PLANS TO EXCAVATE ROMAN RUINS

German Bombers Give Chance To Dig For History Under British Cities.

LONDON—(INS)—The Luftwaffe has presented British archaeologists with the chance of a lifetime.

For beneath the bombed buildings of the city of London there lies 100 acres of Roman London.

Never before has there been such a golden opportunity for a planned excavation of the City of London's secrets.

If it is not undertaken before rebuilding begins, the chance may be lost forever, and to allow this to happen, British experts declared today, would be a national disgrace.

The British Ministry of Work is alive to the need for plans for the excavations if they are to be put into operation as soon as the labor is available after the war.

Discussing the excavation work with International News Service an official of the Ministry of Works said:

"Roman London covered 330 acres and a considerable proportion of that area has been devastated by bombing It will have to be re-built. Practically all of the destruction was caused by fire There were few bomb craters to disturb the foundations.

"The new buildings and the new roads will involve deep digging because of the need for much deeper basements and deeper sewers This deep digging is certain to touch Roman levels, and when it takes place may destroy all evidence of Roman and Saxon times in the city.

"Thus, this may well be the last opportunity of increasing our knowledge of this part of Roman London, and it may be lost forever if the area is not examined under skilled archaeological supervision.

"We have been considering which parts of the devastated area are most important archaeologically and find that a street approximately in line with Cheapside was an important one in Roman times. The area north of St. Paul's Cathedral is also important.

"There is reason to suppose that there were Roman buildings all over the area in question, so that the whole area should be dealt with scientifically before rebuilding begins

"Naturally, property owners and those interested in business will want rebuilding to begin as soon as possible, but it should be possible by close collaboration and careful timing to satisfy both owners and archaeologists. There must be no interruption of the rebuilding."

The Ministry of Works official added that it was not just a question of searching for Roman sculpture, pots, coins, etcetera for museums. It was hoped by excavations to be able to reconstruct a picture of the buildings and everyday life of Roman London, just as it had already been possible, through excavation, to obtain a complete picture of the life in the Roman town of Caerwent, between Chepstow and Newport, in Monmouthshire.

There are other cities in Britain, such as Canterbury and Exeter — both Roman towns — where the same problem arises.

AN INDEPENDENT NEWSPAPER

MANSFIELD, OHIO, MONDAY, MAY 10, 1943.

Byron Price asks tightening of censorship on weather news—so you'll just have to take it as it comes.

Item: "Carburetors and gas already exist which would give more than 50 miles to the gallon"—but, then again, wasn't something of this sort said around ten years ago?

The Kansas City Star belatedly discovers: "Some of the best writing on the war is being done by Ernie Pyle, Indiana-born roving reporter, who is now with American troops in action in Tunisia"—which is something that News-Journal readers have known right along.

Subsidies Do Not Reduce Costs

THERE'S a pleasant sound to announcement of government action to reduce the retail prices of seven major food items—with promise that others will follow.

But, it appears, in some instances production or processing costs will be such as to allow no margin of profit on the basis of price reductions to consumers.

So this detail is to be taken care of by the simple expedient of a government subsidy, which, under present estimates, would amount to no more than $380,000,000 a year.

Under such a method the annoying detail of keeping down production costs would be eliminated from consideration, as in the "cost-plus" method of awarding contracts, and "government money" would be used to assure profits sufficient to assure maximum production of needed foodstuffs.

This all sounds good, until the apparently benefited consumer stops to think about WHO IS PAYING THE SUBSIDY—then he can scarcely fail to realize that HE is the one who, in reality, is paying the subsidy in addition to the price of whatever commodities he buys, and that "the government" is doing nothing more than handing out HIS money.

THAT IS WHAT A SUBSIDY REALLY IS—and while it may be unavoidable under certain conditions, it should not be camouflaged in such a way as to mislead consumers into thinking that they are saving something as a result of price reductions thus attained.

Ohio's Striking Coal Miners

OHIO was brought unfavorably into the limelight over the week-end by strikes of workers in two of the state's largest coal mines, despite government operation and strong appeals that have been made for unimpeded production.

To just what extent the disattached attitude of Governor Bricker, in failing to indicate approval of President Roosevelt's "no strike" edict, may have been instrumental in influencing the attitude of miners in this state cannot be known.

It has become a subject of national comment, however, that Governor Bricker is the only chief executive in a coal-producing state who didn't inform the president of full accord with federal action designed to restore and maintain full operation of mines.

This is a matter of vital importance to the national war effort and whatever co-operation states and communities, through their officials and by expression of public sentiment, can give toward upholding responsible agencies of government in an attempt to prevent work stoppages—in mines or other essential industries—should not be neglected.

Neither political antagonisms nor vote-getting considerations should influence a public official to do less than his full duty at such a crucial time.

Suspend That Sewer Rental Charge

ACTION by the Richland county Republican executive committee, asking city officials to stop collecting sewer rental for the last half of 1943, while quite proper as an indication of citizen interest, seems to give a political angle to what should be no more than a matter of good business management.

After they have been elected and are in office, public officials are assumed to be servants of the entire community and there should be no need for political pressure in order to induce them to act in behalf of all taxpayers and citizens.

It has been clearly shown that the reserve of sewer rental collections is more than is needed in that fund and that there is no reason why this charge should not be eliminated temporarily.

Mayor Locke has recommended—but not urged—that this be done, so what's the explanation for the delay?

Army Housekeeping Is Big Job

AMERICANS are learning that the job of housekeeping is vastly more important than it was assumed to be in peacetime. Housekeeping in time of war is of more importance than in tranquil periods of amity between nations. Armies must have housekeepers.

The services of five men are required for every hundred in the United States army to keep the troops supplied with food and clothes and the everyday services, such as washing and ironing clothes and sewing on buttons. Another crew is required to prepare and cook the food for this vast, hungry crowd. All of them are homemakers' jobs that women carry on every day in the year.

Housekeeping tasks in the army are performed in a big, highly organized manner. But its purpose is the same as housekeeping in civilian life—to keep men comfortable, healthy and well-fed. It isn't the main job of the army, of course, but it is essential.

Return of An Old Favorite

THOSE litle dark blue and pale blue pansy-like plants known as Johnny-jump-ups are once more in favor and their tiny faces look up brightly from the border around many back porches.

A garden editor suggests that plants with family history are worth preserving. The lilac or rose bush that has been in the family for generations, the tree planted by busy hands long since gone to rest, should be helped to long life, or its children should be given place in the modern garden.

So why not plant some Johnny-jump-ups, or other long-loved blooms, in memory of the old garden if not in direct descent from it, and cherish the beauty of the older day. It adds stability and soundness to this strange new world.

That Big Red House on R street sounds as mysterious as the once publicized Little Green House on K street, in Washington—and, in absence of information to the contrary, it may be assumed that both are on the shady side of the street.

Air Raid Prospects Worry Japs

By CHARLES P. STEWART

THAT air raids scare the Japs worse than anything else does is obvious. It also is understandable. Nippon is so concentrated. A few air bombs, scattered over the mikado's main island, can hardly fail to score tremendously damaging hits, because things on the surface are packed together to such an extent that the whole face of the country is a vulnerable target.

Attacking the archipelago with a naval force is at least a very inconvenient task, the remoteness of its geography making it a difficult spot on the map for the assembling of an adequate fleet near enough to its coast to deal with it competently.

Similarly, an invasion of Japan, before it had been "softened up" to the breaking point, would be a near-impossibility, since so many men would have to be transported such a tremendous distance.

Maj. Gen. James H. Doolittle, however, amply demonstrated the empire's accessibility to fighting planes, and the Japs' own howls of protest testify to the islanders' objection to any further doses of the same treatment.

It is true that Doolittle expedition's losses were considerable. The Doolittle mission largely was an experimental venture, though.

Of course, the question arises, "Why cannot the Japs raid us also?"

Well, doubtless they could get a few bombers across the Pacific, but they would not find so congested a country as their own waiting for them as a target. At worst a narrow strip of our western coast would be the only American area they could damage. They would not get far inland and our flyers can criss-cross their realm every which-way.

To be sure, Herr Hitler is promising to co-operate, with a series of raids on the United States from his side of the Atlantic. If he does manage a handful of crossings, though, he will be fixed just like the Japs—on their edge of our continent, unable to push beyond a bare coastal fringe, into the interior.

And it is the safest of all bets that none of these planes, Jap or German, ever will succeed in returning to report to the mikado or Herr Hitler. Such as we do not bag, while they are in our skies, certainly would not be able to fly, trans-oceanically, home again. Any assignment to one of those flights will be an assignment to commit suicide — a basis upon which the available supply of Jap and Nazi aviators could not last long.

In the matter of retaliatory raids against the Japs and Nazis, the Americans and British are at a big advantage over the enemy.

Anyway, Anglo-American flyers naturally have an admirable anti-Nazi base in the British Isles. There is no danger that they will not be able to get back from their raids.

As for the Pacific angle of the conflict, China will furnish accommodations for thrusts at the Japs. There will be American aircraft carriers to reckon with likewise.

In short, many competent authorities forecast that this is drifting rapidly into a pretty exclusively air war. Uncle Sam and John Bull manifestly will be the offensive pair on "global" grounds. The only thing the Japs and Germons can do is to warn, "If we catch any of you fellows' flyers, we will kill them.

I have no notion that the two big democracies will murder Japs and Germans indiscriminately in similiar fashion, but they will have to kill them, nevertheless.

Today, the world is getting back to the original article of "anything goes" warfare.

Aviation is what has done it. It makes it impossible to draw distinctions, and it looks like being the nastiest war of modern times.

Fighting and Voting

THE YOUNGSTERS are battling it out before an old live-oak fire with doughnuts and pop in between rounds. So if this article happens to sound like a combination of Custer's Last Stand and a rodeo, you'll know the whysome.

The topic is the same as that which is burning holes in every hearth rug between here and Kiska. Namely—

"HOW ABOUT LOWERING THE VOTING AGE? IF KIDS ARE FIT TO FIGHT AREN'T THEY FIT TO VOTE?"

A few of our more valiant veterans are acting as referees, keeping well on the side lines. But there's nothing cautious about the 'een age menace who are not only holding the floor but taking a few canibalistic snaps at each other meantimes.

They think—as anyone within a mile might gather—that anyone from fifteen years up, should be entitled to have his or her voice in running this country.

For why?

Answer—accompanied by withering glances—Anyone can see that. If they're big enough to fight they're big enough to vote.

But do fighting and voting demand the same essential experience?

Why not? There you go again! Treatin' us as if we wuz kids. Everyone knows that the Modern Kid has had more General Experience at 15 than his Dad had at 45!

At which point Dad, who played a lusty role in the late rumpus at Argonne, ventures to make a few remarks despite the obvious and noisy discouragement of his progeny.

"Look here, comrades in arms," says he, "I admit I'm pretty much of an amateur when it comes to discussing the Real Things of Life. But after all, I have strung along through a couple of wars and hung around Washington for a term or two. So I have some sort of ration book or point value on the general subject. And my idea is that while fighting and voting may both qualify you for a lovely marble slab, it takes more than fighting to prepare you for the voting booth.

"Aw, Dad, why can't you stop acting up and talking like something out of 'Willkie the Ranger'. This from a bored but beauteous daughter.

DAD grinned. Daughter glared. The subject was resumed. "Well, Sis," said Dad, "I'll stop cutting rugs and get down to business because—and I agree with you for once—this business of lowering the voting age is certainly real Medicine Talk. But, as I said before, I can't see why service in the Army, Navy, Waacs, Wobs or Wivels entitles any of you to start pushing the government around before the conventional age.

"Granted they both mean a spell of hard work, but neither kind of experience prepares you for the other. Sure, you get shoved around either way. But the kid, male or female, who's saving the U. S. A. in some training camp, has about as much global contact as a hoss fly has with a permanent wave. He does what he's told and that's that.

"Yeah, I know—by the time you get all tricked up in these new uniforms you look chuck full of authority. But it isn't the kind of authority that's going to capture the Wes End Vote or slap down a Black Market Racketeer."

"But Dad, I thought you said you believed kids should get their experience early," came an outraged chorus.

"And that I did," chuckles Dad. "But by experience I meant experience. Really getting hep to the main tricks. Not just hopping around playing mumbly-peg and taking orders from some pint size pup."

"Well, of course, if you're going to turn everything into a stupid joke . . .!

Dad had evidently scorned the track rules, and was properly snubbed. But I've been wondering if he didn't have something there. After all—aren't fightin' n' fidgetin' something different in the realm of indoor sports? And is either a substitute for the other?

PS. Do we want answers? We do! From either sex and brown on both sides.

Fighting For Pie.

A correspondent on Guadalcanal asked marines what they are fighting for. One answer was particularly significant. A battle-weary leatherneck replied, "What I'd give for a piece of blueberry pie."

A Red Cross worker in India reports the best cure for homesickness among American troops is apple pie.

Maybe it's wrong to call this war the "People's War" or the "War for Four Freedoms." It's a "Pie War."

Pie means a lot to us Americans. It is an extra, a minor luxury that tops a good meal, that gives a man a better outlook. Pie is home and Mother's cooking. Pie is Sunday to many, and Sunday is church—the church of a belief freely chosen. Pie is lunchbox to others—the privilege of working and earning that pie.

How much pie do you think we might get if Germany and Japan win this war? Pie is worth fighting for.—Akron Beacon Journal.

Washington's Big Dinner Parties Becoming Rare as Dinosaur Eggs

WASHINGTON—The problem of going out to dinner, once Washington's outstanding industry, is now getting, oh so difficult. Old inhabitants predict that at the present rate of decline, dining out will soon be as rare as dinosaur eggs.

Full dress evening clothes are now seen about as frequently as the old coach-and-four in which Washington dowagers once drove to dinner. And even less formal dinner jackets have largely been relegated to the moth balls.

This is really astonishing for a town which once fought vitriolic battles over who should sit where, a town in which the Vice President of the United States issued formal communiques to the effect that his half-sister must go in to dinner ahead of the wife of Speaker Nick Longworth.

Reasons for the change are: at first, gas rationing against pleasure driving; second, food rationing; and now all the flurry over the Big Red House on R street. In other words, you can't tell whether you're going to sit beside a war contract lobbyist these days and get your name in the headlines later.

When gas was rationed for pleasure driving, a certain amount of dining out went on anyway, although most people observed the regulations. Some used public transportation, some walked, including Vice President and Mrs. Wallace; and some considered dining out as official business.

As a matter of fact, some of it is business, and is so recognized by the state department. Visiting dignitaries to the U. S. A. have to be wined and dined. American visitors are royally entertained in their countries, and they would not understand it if we did not reciprocate.

Recognizing this fact, the state department has allowed extra point rationing for embassies and legations which must entertain, and also for certain hostesses who are asked to entertain Latin American delegations.

Cabinet members also have to do a certain amount of dining out, though most of them are so tired at the end of the day that they avoid it as much as possible. Jesse Jones is to be seen from time to time at the Brazilian embassy. Since Brazil is an ally at war this can be construed as official business, though a visit to the embassy is not hard medicine to take, because Jesse loves bridge and even gets a kick out of watching the conga dancers.

Frank Knox also likes to stir about at an occasional dinner party, especially when senators are present, and he can warm up his contacts on Capitol Hill.

But of late it's no longer a matter of gas and locomotion, it's the fact that hostesses just aren't willing to spend their ration points on entertaining anyone at dinner. Some of them do manage to invite a few guests when they are lucky enough to find extra chickens or a batch of fish; or when their guests are people like Senator George of Georgia or North Carolina's Max Gardner, who don't mind helping to cook hominy grits in the kitchen.

But except for embassy dinners with extra ration points, or Mrs. Evalyn McLean of Hope Diamond fame, who will always carry on, or a few black market dinners where questions aren't asked, old-fashioned dining out in Washington is almost passe.

Added to which, it probably will be a long time before anyone of importance accepts an invitation to any dinner where he doesn't know all the guests in advance, for fear he may find himself headlined afterwards as being present at some place like the mysterious Big Red House on R Street, alleged rendezvous for war contractors.

Star Bond Salesman.

ONE OF THE biggest bond sales made by any one person in the recent war bond drive was put across by Saul Haas, astute collector of customs at Seattle, Wash.

Haas knew that the state of Washington had several million dollars lying around uninvested and he set out to sell the state on putting this in war bonds. Simultaneously, a group of investment bankers had some ideas as to where the state should invest its nest-egg of $20,000,000.

Haas, however, beat them to it. He persuaded state authorities that the best possible investment was in Uncle Sam's bonds, not private bonds. Furthermore he found out what the investment bankers did not know, that the state had, not $20,000,000, but $33,000,000.

He got that amount, all in one check. At the war bond dinner celebrating receipt of the check, Dietrich Schmidz, president of the Washington Mutual Savings Bank, sitting opposite Haas, said:

"Saul, any time you want a job you can have it with me. You're too good a salesman to waste in a government job."

Merry-Go-Round.

EXTROVERT Leon Henderson, busy entertaining Hollywood recently, inspired this wisecrack from Al Cohn: "During the entire evening I was unable to interrupt sufficiently to tell him what a great guy he was." . . . New York's Charlie O'Reilly, whose father organized the "County Democracy" against the famous Croker, is active in organizing a new "County Democracy" against the present Tammany gang . . . Congressman Sol Bloom, long a pillar of the house of representatives, may be undermined by Tammany Leader Mike Kennedy . . . When navy doctors examined all Washington admirals over the age of 54 recently they found most of them unable to pass physical regulations, which are strict. One admiral remarked: "At Trafalgar, Lord Nelson didn't have but one eye—and that was against regulations."

Tribute to Soldiers of First Division; Name Remains, But Men Come and Go.

NORTHERN TUNISIA—(By Wireless)—A few weeks ago I said in one of these columns that the part the Americans would play in the final phase of the Tunisian war would be comparatively small. That was true, if you look at it from the big angle.

But when you look at it from the worm's-eye view that has been mine in the front lines during a big portion of the fight, it is hard to see anything from the big angle, and I feel constrained to eat my words.

Our part has seemed mighty large to me at times. For our American troops had a brutal fight in the mountain phase of this campaign.

It was war of such intensity as Americans on this side of the ocean had not known before. It was a battle without letup. It was a war of drenching artillery and hidden mines and walls of machine-gun fire and even of the barbaric bayonet.

It was an exhausting, cruel, last-ditch kind of war, and those who went through it would seriously doubt that war could be any worse than those two weeks of mountain fighting.

The Germans battled savagely and desperately from hill to hill until the big break came. There were times when we had to throw battalion after battalion onto an already pulverized hill before we could finally take it. Our casualties will surely run high.

Nobody will care to underrate the American contribution to the end of Rommel in North Africa.

MY TIME at the front was spent with a certain unit of the First Infantry Division. This division has now been through four big battles in North Africa and has made a good name for itself in every one of them. But it has paid dearly for its victories.

Apparently there have been some intimations in print back home that the First Division did not fight so well in its earlier battles. The men of the division all are as sore as hornets about it. If such a thing was printed it was somebody's unfortunate mistake. For the First Division has always fought well.

It is natural to be loyal to your friends, and I feel a loyalty to the First Division, for I have lived with it off and on for six months. But it is a sad thing to become loyal to the men of a division in wartime. It is sad because the men go, and new ones come and they go, and other new ones come until at last only the famous number is left. Finally it is only a numbered mechanism through which men pass. The First Division will exist forever, but my friends of today may not.

• • •

FOR YOU at home who think this African war has been small stuff, let me tell you just this one thing—the First Division has already done more fighting here than it did throughout the last war.

LIFE'S LIKE THAT

"The black eyes are phony but they sure make it easier to talk the butcher out of beefsteak!"

Dave Boone Says:

AN ARKANSAS man, Lieut. John Stockton, is back on a furlough after serving as a dentist at Guadalcanal. He says that all the boys who had teeth pulled or drilled thought it was swell fun compared to the jungle fighting. "This ain't going to hurt you" must have seemed pretty superfluous out there.

• • •

The dentist and his patient often had to dive for a fox hole right in the middle of a treatment. Once they emerged to find the tent blown away. This was one case where postponement of a session with a dentist made the patient sore. The chair was comparatively a place of peace, comfort and happiness.

• • •

I see where John Lewis and the other mine chiefs are continuing to ignore the government's War Labor board. The board has had to name one of its attorneys as a "stand-in" for John. But doubling for him ain't easy. It's a hard role.

• • •

The fighting boys over in Africa are doing a grand job. None of 'em's been able to get anybody to "stand in" for them. They have to show up in person.

A Farmer's Diary

By CALVIN A. BYERS

Homeward Bound

TRAVELING home from the children's grandmother's, after dark—a distance of 40 miles—we found gravel roads in good shape, so we avoided traffic, and took the narrower, country lanes, instead.

Here was closer contact with woodland odors, dewy fragrance of peach and apple blooms, the rugged smell of fresh, raw earth. Ahead of us the tail lights of three other cars carefully wound their way across the hills. The closest one turned in a narrow drive half grown over with close-cropped grass. We saw the headlight glare against the trees in front and light up the windows of the gable end. Cattle in the barnyard were lowing to be milked. The faithful shepherd dog came bounding out, frisked about the arrivals as they alighted and barked his impatient, happy welcome.

Following homeward, one by one the other cars turned off and disappeared. I counted twelve, on our way—saw each darkened house light suddenly, except three. These still burned the old oil lamps, and well I knew it takes a short time to adjust the mantle and wick before an oil lamp becomes visible.

We reached our village. Few cars on the street. Churches and homes lighted. People in their homes—quietly and peacefully resting or moving decorously homeward.

Without event, we turned eastward from the highway and followed down Honey Creek. We, too, turned in at our own red barn, and drove carefully into the spacious, shed-garage.

When I stopped, not a sound came from the rear seat. Somewhat stiffened by the drive, I got out and opened the rear door.

My wife climbed out on the other side and together we began to arouse our four young boys, asleep in outlandish, and peculiar positions. I shook the oldest and he yawned and tried to stir his slumbering brother, next in age. A howl arose—then angry words—then tears. Protestingly, I started them together toward the house.

I pulled the two younger sleepers to me, and with one under each arm, I followed my wife and daughter into the room and laid the last two boys on the couch, quickly readying them for bed. Then I loaded them up again and went with them to the attic, where I tucked each sleepy tiny boy beneath the covers. Before I took the dim lantern away, I lifted it and looked on the two again.

Coming home to the farm with the family at night is a rare experience any more, for we go so seldom. But always there is for their mother and me, a sense of pleasure and gratitude, when arriving safely home with every tired little passenger ready for slumber.
